Pilot of Plane That Crashed In Woods Behind Airport Still in Critical Condition

The pilot of a single-engine airplane which crashed in woods beyond the edge of a Princeton Airport runway Sunday afternoon remains in critical condition Tuesday afternoon in the intensive care unit at Princeton Medical Center.

The pilot, 50-year old Bruce Williams of Franklin Park, the host of an NBC business and financial radio talk show, sustained multiple injuries, including a broken leg and intestinal lacerations.

Two passengers, Ralph Blasingame, 62, of East Brunswick, and Jay Panter, 50, of Edison, were listed in fair to good condition by the hospital spokesman. The bones in both his upper arms broken, Mr. Blasingame had originally been admitted in serious condition, while Mr. Panter's condition had been listed as critical.

Mr. Williams had reportedly purchased the 1964 Cessna 182 less than a month ago and had received his pilot's license six months ago.

The accident occurred at 3:25 p.m. in clear weather as the three were returning from a recreational flight to Monmouth County Airport. According to Mr. Blasingame, Mr. Williams had twice tried to land the plane.

After the second aborted landing attempt, Mr. Williams tried to lift the nose of the plane to make another approach. As the plane began to climb, Mr. Blasingame said, the stalling warning device activated. The plane's nose was high in the air when it struck the top of a stand of trees 300 feet beyond the edge of the runway.

The resultant crash sheared back the wings of the plane and tore open the nose section. It landed on its side in a wooded area. The three victims were carried from the wreckage by members of the Princeton, Rocky Hill and Montgomery rescue squads.

David Van Dyke, owner of the Princeton Airport, described the crash as the worst since he took over the operation in 1969. The first officer at the crash site, Montgomery Ptl. Kenneth A. Chrusz, described the plane as a total wreck.

Mr. Williams's son confirmed that his father has undergone major surgery. He is host of a telephone-

Parking Will Be Free In Business District This Saturday to Aid Christmas Shoppers

Park free — with the Season's Greetings of Borough shop-keepers and the Borough itself.

Not all the time or every day, of course.

But next Saturday, December 18, you may park at any of the 600-or-so meters in the Central Business District without plugging a single nickel.

Bags, buttoning-up the meters for the day, will read "Happy Holidays from the Princeton Retail Merchants Association and the Borough of Princeton." They will be placed, and removed, by teens hired by the Borough.

The idea comes from Dorothy Marsh, owner of Polly's Fine Candies, and she is donating the meter bags. A lot of other people have wanted to do this for a long time, but this year it seemed like an idea whose time had come — for a day, anyway.

There is a catch, sort of; you're supposed to stay at any one meter for only about two hours. Police will be on the prowl, and if they find you overstaying your welcome, they may suggest you move on. Police Commissioner Barbara Hill says police think that only about five percent will be uncooperative, and she reports that Police Chief Michael Carnevale is "very supportive" of the free-day idea.

Ten-hour meters will probably not be included in the gift, Ms. Hill says.

The Borough stands to lose about $500 in meter revenue, by the way. But in the spirit of the season — who's counting?

State Plans Another Cut In Aid to School Districts; Board Ponders Next Move

Lopping off a finger here, an arm there, even a whole leg, the state moves inexorably along the body of New Jersey's public schools.

Last Friday, the Commissioner of Education told all superintendents their districts would be cut three percent. This, for Princeton, is $18,786. It's in addition to the $524,000 minimum-aid amputation of last summer and the $40,000 lost in equalized aid earlier this year.

It means cuts in all the rest of state aid: transportation, compensatory education (including classes for non-English speaking students) and special education.

The cut comes on top of new requirements imposed by the state:

- $70,000 room and board for four severely handicapped Princeton children;
- $57,000 (up from $40,000 in '82) as Princeton's share of a state-wide assessment for institutionalized children from every part of the state.
- $14,000 for a pre-school special education summer school, new this past summer.

Meanwhile, with fewer children as well as fewer dollars, Princeton is contemplating the removal of all fifth grades into the middle school next September, and the closing of an elementary school the following year.

At this Tuesday's meeting, the school board was scheduled to hold further talks with parents about the transfer. Next Tuesday, December 14, the board hopes to make the fifth grade decision. Parents will be invited to talk about the matter before the vote. The meeting will be held at 8 in the high school library.

After last Wednesday's meeting of the board's Program Committee, it appears that the only question may be whether the board should move the fifth grades one year and close a school the next, or do both in the same year — presumably in '84.

At the meeting, the Program Committee heard the three elementary school principals comment on loss of their fifth-graders. Eugene Biringer, Riverside, urged continuance in the middle school, of basic elementary-school education for the fifth-graders: "reading instruction —not 'English'.

And, with a bittersweet grin, he added "I want to hold onto them, but I'm willing to sacrifice losing kids at their ripest, most mature elementary years."

Lloyd Taylor, Littlebrook, said he believed any potential social adjustment problems could be worked out. His chief concern was the loss of staff who deal in special subjects. Norma Gumbiner, Community Park, worried that scheduling would be extremely difficult.

Moving the fifth grade must be tied to the closing of another elementary school, said Superintendent Paul Houston, warning that loss of 200 middle school pupils in the next two years would have "dramatic impact" on what could be offered at the middle school.

"It's possible to put fifth graders and eighth graders in the same building and have them both survive," he commented. "The sixth grade has always been an odd wheel at the middle school; now, with a 5-6, 7-8 grade combination, we could have balance."

To parents who worry about "adolescent contamination by those worldly-wise seventh and eighth graders," Dr. Houston explained that the middle school building is designed in clusters, so that it's simple to separate the ages.

"Will it unduly hurry a child? Princeton itself is a breeding ground for hurrying kids along," the superintendent continued. "It's all in how we handle it."

Using charts, middle school principal William Johnson gave a detailed, technical explanation of scheduling, assuring parents and school board that fifth graders would continue to have science, math, social studies and the other academics "just like elementary school."

In addition, they would have exploratory French, Spanish and music, so they could make choices in sixth grade for deeper study. In the school's cycle program, they would also have family living, art, computers, home economics.

Mr. Johnson said he would like to expand the arts and computer classes at the middle school for seventh and eighth grade, and teach pupils wood and metal-working basics, but cannot do so now because of the smaller size of the student body.

The real question, he mused, might be this: "how do you teach a 10-year-old to open a locker?"

Eva Collins, a parent deeply involved in the closing of Johnson Park, urged school officials to prepare younger students for their new environment. Linda Meisel, a social worker with Family Service, expressed concern about the emotional demands on children not ready for them, and teacher Jean Gilpin said fifth-graders were ready academically to join the middle school, but perhaps not emotionally.

Prayer Bill Vetoed

Governor Thomas H. Kean has vetoed a bill requiring a moment of silence in all public school classrooms at the beginning of school each day. He signed the veto last Thursday, December 2.

The governor said he was vetoing the measure because he believed it to be unconstitutional. If signed into law, he said, there would be immediate court challenges.

Members of the governor's legal staff, who advised Governor Kean in the matter, said they based their decision on a Tennessee case. A Federal district judge in that case, had found that while the moment of silence in itself is not unconstitutional, it reflects the clear intent of the state legislature to introduce prayer into the classroom.

Stiff Penalties Adopted by Township Committee To Deter Vandalism, Litter at Recycling Shed

Residents would do well to remember that the Recycling Shed in Princeton Shopping Center is open six days a week, Monday-Saturday, from 8:30 to 4:30. Under a new ordinance adopted last week by Township Committee, residents who drop off their newspapers and glass jars when the shed is not open are now subject to a court summons and the general penalty fine of up to $500 or 90 days in jail.

The Recycling Shed has suffered two fires in the past two years, both of which are thought to have been set by vandals. The first demolished a wooden structure so that it had to be rebuilt entirely; the second, which was started in bundles of newspapers outside the building, caused minimal damage to the cinder block replacement.

Disturbed by the vandalism and the unsightliness of piled up papers and bags of glass bottles, the Shopping Center management appealed to Committee for an enforceable remedy. Appeals to the public and clearly spelled-out and posted rules and hours were not having an effect.

With authorization from the Shopping Center, and under the terms of the new ordinance, Township Police may now issue a summons on quasi-public, quasi-private shopping center lands to individuals doing the right thing -- recycling -- at the wrong moment.

Microphones at Last. Last Wednesday's Township Committee meeting was marked by the first use of a new acoustical system which makes it possible for members of the audience to pick up the mumblings of the more soft-spoken Committee members -- provided they have pushed the "on" button on their individual microphones and have not swiveled their chairs away from the mike. There are six modest-sized black speakers, stereophonically placed, three Ga., to be with his wife. Mr. Wheeler reported that the Snowden Lane-Overbrook Road drainage repair project is complete, and so, essentially, is Turning Basin Park, where the landscaping is in place and the parking areas and structures are finished. He recommended, however, that Turning Basin Park not be opened to the public until the spring to allow the grass and bushes to take hold over the winter.

Drainage work and curbing have been finished in the stretch of Herrontown Road to be repaved, and a first course of asphalt laid down in the two and one half weeks that Herrontown was closed to the public. The final course will probably not be laid until spring, Mr. Wheeler said.

each, on opposite walls, to amplify the deliberations of the Committee or roll calls by the Clerk.

There is even a lectern, also equipped with a microphone with an on-off button, for a member of the audience to grasp for support in making his or her views known to the town fathers mothers.

All the microphones are the same -- except for the Mayor's. With the authority of his office, the Mayor may, with a second on-off button, cut off the long winded speech of a member of the audience or perhaps even of a fellow committee member. The system cost $3,800, Township Administrator Joseph R. Nini reports.

The meeting was also marked by the final appearance of Walter Wheeler as Township Engineer. Mr. Wheeler submitted his resignation last month in the order to return to Atlanta, Money for Busing. In its work session, Committee agreed to an expenditure of $20,000 for Hazardous Route Busing for 1983. This is two-thirds of what it is expected to cost to bus children whose route to school is deemed to be a hazardous one, either because the road they have to walk along has no sidewalk or bikeway or there is a major highway, like Bayard Lane, to cross. Committeeman Richard Schoch voted against his colleagues, saying he would vote for 100 percent funding but not for two-thirds. The Township has a credit of $26,000 with the School Board which will be applied against this charge for 1983.

Committee also discussed whether or not to extend its semi-annual clean-up weeks as one Township resident had requested. Mr. Wheeler provided a memo -- his last -- describing past policies and present costs involved in the clean-up weeks. It would cost $15,000, he estimates, for each additional two-week period tacked on to the present two-week clean-up week.

Mr. Wheeler also strongly recommended that the regulations for cutting and tying up branches not be relaxed because strict enforcement is necessary to enable the crews to complete each clean-up in two weeks. Committee felt that wider promulgation of the rules might help reduce the number of complaints from residents and decided to look into putting out a mailing with the tax bill. No action was taken on extending clean-up week, pending a closer look at the 1983 budget.

But it was pointed out that the public works department is currently working with three fewer staff because of the cap squeeze on the budget and one man out on an extended sick leave. It is this reduction in work force, plus delays due to weather, plus the large area to cover, that make it difficult for the road crew to complete leaf pick-up as quickly as residents would like, Mr. Nini says. He adds that leaf pick-up will continue as long as leaves are there — unless it snows.

In Baker Court Entry. Approximately $5,000 in jewelry, including pearl necklaces and gold watches, plus $1,000 in cash were stolen last week from a home on Baker Court.

Police were called at 7:30 Sunday evening by a neighbor who reported an alarm sounding. The owners were away at the time, police report.

The intruder gained entry by climbing a roof over a patio and entering a window. Police said the bedrooms had been ransacked. The alarm was triggered when the intruder left by way of the front door.

A home for sale on Battle Road was entered sometime during the weekend.

The entry was reported Monday afternoon by a realtor showing the house and Lt. Jack Petrone commented, "We have no way to determine what was taken."

To get inside, the thief first pried open a rear casement window and then broke an interior storm window. Police

Five for Board

Five Borough residents have applied for Joel Cooper's seat on the school board and were scheduled for private interviews with the board this Tuesday.

The chosen one will serve until the board's reorganization meeting April 12.

Those who have applied are Ruth N. Bronzan, 34 Snowden Lane; Joan Forscher, 12 Sergeant; Corinne Kyle, 14 Hamilton; Michael S. Mahoney, 10 Dickinson and Karen Woodbridge, 56 William.

Mr. Cooper resigned from the board because he has moved from Borough to Township.

said the house is still furnished.

Borough police report the theft of a $240 AM-FM radio cassette player from a student's room at the Princeton Inn Dormitory. The room was entered between 7 and 8 Saturday night without force.

There was a burglary attempt Saturday night in a home on Armour Road. Two patrol cars responded, after police here received a call at 9:12 from an alarm company. As the officers approached the scene, they also heard an audible alarm sounding.

Someone had broken a window in a side door, causing both a silent and audible alarm to sound. The intruder, who fled the house, had no opportunity to take anything, police said.

Crossing Mercer Street. A 10-year old youth, Milo Cogan of 53 University Place, was struck by a car at 5:01 Monday night, as he was crossing Mercer Street near Alexander Street.

The victim was transported by the Princeton First Aid Squad to Princeton Medical Center where he was treated for abrasions and contusions of the face and right hip and released.

There were no charges by Ptl Donald Dawson against the driver, Patrick Murphy of Oak Lane, Trenton. Police said the youth had attempted to cross in the middle of the block near Trinity Church.

Planning Board Hearings on Palmer Square Enlivened by Attack on Princeton's Sewers

Sewage, fires and parking occupied the Planning Board last week as it devoted still another evening to Collins' plans for an expanded Palmer Square.

The board and Collins will get together again on Monday (7:30 p.m., Valley Road) and everyone hopes the board will act that night. If it doesn't, Collins has been booked into the board's work session Monday, December 20. Same time, same place.

A fusillade between Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley and Mrs. Olivia Applegate exploded in the middle of lengthy and scathing remarks by Mrs. Applegate, Random Road, about Princeton's sewer system.

Although she did not come right out and say so at the board meeting, she declared this week in an interview that she thought the board ought to turn down Collins' application because of the effect additional buildings would have on Princeton's frail and elderly sewers.

Mayor Cawley also had a statement this week. He said the Planning Board, as a condition of approval for Collins, should require that all the money Collins must contribute to the sewer trust fund — $400,000 is the amount usually quoted — be used to fix the sewer problems along Harry's Brook that so plague Mrs. Applegate's neighborhood.

"Repair downstream infiltration," is the way the mayor put it.

The mayor also told his press conference Monday that he hopes Council will pass, "in February or March," the bond ordinance providing money to do all sewer repairs. Work might even begin this summer, he speculated.

Borough Overflow. Mrs. Applegate, whose home is in the Township, showed the Planning Board photographs taken in her neighborhood of what she said was overflowing sewage from the Borough. She also had photographs of Harry's Brook in flood.

Quoting the figure of 43,137 gallons per day as the estimated amount Collins' new buildings would dump into the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority plant, she said it was too much for delapidated sewers to take. At one point she asked, "Who is the villain?"

She reminded the board that an approved Township project by Bowers Development will also pour out water and sewage.

"We've been struggling with this for a long time" Mayor Cawley told her. "Collins isn't the villain. Under our sewer trust law, they'll pay $8 per gallon — far more than they would pay under the off-tract improvement law."

"I'm embarrassed that we've been so laggard in getting the job done, but we've been chasing a rainbow, hoping to get somebody else to pay for it. Many of us now believe we've got to pay for the work ourselves; we're ready to go with a bond issue, and it's got to be done."

After the Planning Board meeting, Mrs. Applegate said bitterly, "If Collins is approved, what incentive is that for the Borough to float a bond issue? They'll have their shops and their rateables. A lot of money has gone to fix Borough sewers, but not one pipe has been fixed where I live. Yet the board approves Township projects."

A $2,500 study of the sewers has been approved. Mayor Cawley said that, since there are two trunk lines, the sewage Mrs. Applegate photographed might not have come from the Borough.

Fire Trucks on the Deck. Fire Chief Raymond Wadsworth warned the board the state might require that a full-size fire truck — a pumper — be able to drive onto Collins' deck at the north of the Square. Chief Wadsworth has only recommended a mini-pumper, and he would like a ramp leading up to the deck.

But Collins' architects say they can't do a ramp, and that the deck won't support a regular truck. They have placed cabinets on the deck, holding fire equipment and ladders long enough to reach the tops of all buildings.

When a Planning Board member asked about somebody trapped on the top floor of the five-story office building, architect Stephen Frankel said five stories met the zoning requirements, and besides the building would have sprinklers throughout. So far, no sprinklers have been planned for houses.

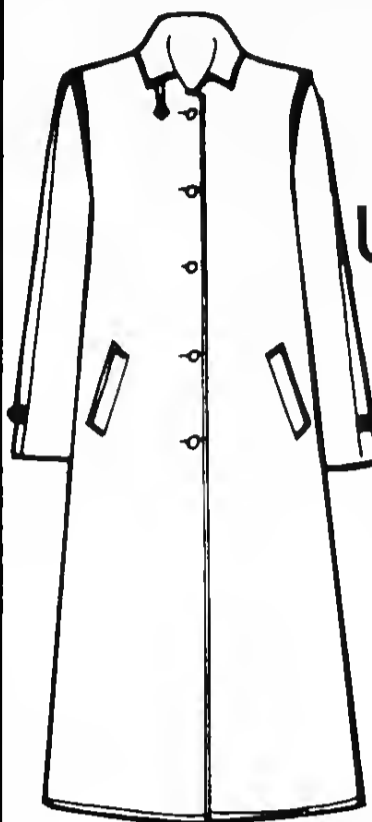

"We'll be required to meet fire codes when we bring in our final building plans," said Collins' lawyer Thomas C. Jamieson, "and we don't intend to ask for a waiver."

R. Lee Hobaugh, planning consultant retained by Eric Mihan, owner of The English Shop and an opponent of Collins' plans, challenged figures on parking spaces. He said no minimum number of required spaces had been established. Mayor Cawley suggested that

The Christmas Appeal

"He hadn't eaten in two days, he said. Why not? No money for food...."

Helped along by an anonymous gift of $500—in cash—the 1982 Town Topics Christmas Appeal has already topped the $2,000 mark, a scant week after publication of the case histories provided by the Family Service Agency.

The total, as of Tuesday: $2,006. Last year, one week after publication, it was $1,465.

People who live in Princeton have always been generous and compassionate toward fellow citizens in trouble. In the 35 years since the Appeal began, Princeton residents and their neighbors in surrounding towns, have given more than $130,000 to the fund.

Money is distributed by the Family Service Agency of Princeton. Town Topics bears all administrative costs, and every penny you contribute goes to those in need.

Make your checks payable to the Town Topics Christmas Fund. Send them to: Town Topics, Box 664, Princeton, N.J. 08540. All contributions are tax-deductible.

Margen Penick, member of the Planning Board, urged more open space. She asked whether Collins was counting, as required open space, the roof-top garden court in the old Palmer Square building. Collins' architect Do Chung said no.

Jerome C. Premo, executive director of N.J. Transit, told the audience in the State Museum Auditorium that N.J. Transit has a $50 million deficit in its operating budget. Transit gives $5 million of its $8 million budget to county bus lines run by Mercer Metro.

Mercer County Executive Bill Mathesius said he was aware of N.J. Transit's financial predicament, but urged the organization to be more selective in routes they decide to curtail. He suggested that Quakerbridge Mall merchants "might well bear a few bucks."

THEFT CHARGE LODGED

Against Jersey City Man. James J. Clate, 22, of Jersey City, has been charged by Township police with the theft of $5,800 in jewelry and silver, allegedly taken from a

Stockton Street home. Clate was arrested inside the home by Ptl. David Cromwell, after police had received Roland was driving a car whose ignition had been hot wired and may have been stolen from Jersey City, police said.

The incident began a half hour earlier at 4:30 a.m., when a woman called police to report that she had been accosted while walking on Nassau Street near Van deventer. Two officers went to her home to interview her. She told them that as she was walking, a man had parked his car and had attempted to approach her. Police said that he frightened, but did not harm her and drove off. The victim supplied police with a description of the suspect and the car. It was radioed to patrol cars in the area.

About ten minutes later, as Sgt. Peter Hanley was leaving the Medical Center, his attention was drawn to a man, police said, acting in a bizzare manner. He fitted the description of the suspect.

When Sgt. Hanley further observed a car parked outside that also fit the description of the suspect car, he went back to the hospital, continued his investigation, and arrested Roland.

FIVE CHECKS STOLEN

And Forged for $1475. Five checks stolen from a Nassau Street resident have since been forged and successfully cashed for $1,475.77. Police report that each was cashed at a different location -- none at a bank -- all in Mercer County.

The victim notified police Monday when he received the cancelled checks in his statement. "The usual kind of thing in this type of theft when someone finds a checkbook," commented Chief Michael Carneval, "is to take three or four checks from the rear of the book so the victim doesn't know they are missing."

Chief Carnevale added that the police investigation is continuing. It is possible, he said, that workmen working in a building had access to the victim's apartment.

PEDESTRIAN IS STRUCK

Near Shopping Center. A 54-year old pedestrian was struck last week near a Princeton Shopping Center entrance.

Laura L. Kruskal, 60 Littlebrook Road, was taken to heavy and the roadway was Princeton Medical Center wet. There was poor lighting after complaining of back at the time -- 6:35 p.m. -- and pains. There were no charges by Sgt. Robert Heacock headlights of approaching cars were dazzling, he said. against the driver, Barbara J. Greenspan, 46, 76 Valley Road.

A locked 1977 Mercedes was stolen last week between 9:30 and 10:15 p.m. from Lytle Street.

The following evening -- Thursday -- police received a call from Trenton police reporting that the car had been recovered on Perry Street. Three persons were inside and police there charged the driver, 18-year old Alfred Dennis of Trenton, with possession of a stolen car. The car is owned by a Princeton resident.

A small computer game valued at $69 was shoplifted Monday afternoon from a Nassau Street store, prompting Chief Michael Carnevale to warn merchants "Tis the season to be careful."

Two bicycles were stolen -- one, unlocked, valued at $175 from a Moore Street front yard, and another, also unlocked, parked in front of Woolworth's on Nassau Street. The latter, valued at $89, was taken Monday.

Purse Is Stolen. The purse of an employee of Titles Unlimited in the Montgomery Center, Rocky Hill, was taken from a rear office Friday between 11:30 and 2:45 p.m.

School Board President McGoldrick Charges Gross Irresponsibility by State

Noted for the splendor and resonance of her comments when the State of New Jersey takes after public schools, Ann McGoldrick, president of Princeton's school board, had a few words this week about the three percent cut sliced from all districts in the state by Commissioner of Education Saul Cooperman.

"What is happening in the state is the result of gross irresponsibility on the part of the Governor and the Legislature," Mrs. McGoldrick began.

"The Governor should call the Legislature into a non-stop session until this is resolved; if he won't, the leadership of the Legislature should."

"For the Republicans to say the ball is in the Democrats' court, and the Democrats to say the ball is in the Republican's court, is sheer negligence. It is politics at its worst."

"And I don't think the people of the state want it this way."

Mrs. McGoldrick said she had "enormous sympathy" for East Windsor, a new district whose enrollment has doubled and which has no reserves to cushion against the three percent cut.

"I am angry about where Princeton is, but when I think of Trenton and East Windsor -- they are paralyzed. To think that we can provide quality education under these circumstances, is ridiculous."

"How can local boards be expected to plan, to operate, to be held accountable? It's absurd. It's Kafkaesque."

Never one to withhold a comment, Superintendent Paul Houston remarked that "we get hit no matter what they do: if they target the cuts, we get it; if they spread the cuts state-wide, we get it."

"Someone asked me if this most recent cut was 'fair'. I gave up on fairness long ago, where the state is concerned."

The victim lost $100 and her purse valued at $60.

Between 3 and 7 a.m. last week, someone knocked out a window panel on the side of the Arco service station on Alexander Street and took some cans of motor oil and several sealed-beam headlamps.

Two marking light assemblies and a carburetor linkage were reported stolen Saturday from a car parked in a Clover Lane driveway. Police said that the parts -- taken between Nov. 15 and Saturday -- were valued at $35.

Taken overnight from the parked car of a university student last week were a stereo tape deck, radio equipment and a flashlight with a combined value of $158. Police said that the door lock had been jimmied open to gain access. The car was parked in

VIGIL PLANNED

By Anti-Nuclear Group. "Peace on Earth: Stop the Cruise and Pershing Missiles" will be the theme of a candle-light vigil sponsored by the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament on Monday from 6:30-7:30 p.m. at the Naval Air

READY TO HELP PDS: Key members of the Annual Fund drive committee at Princeton Day School are shown here at the start of the campaign. They are, from left: Mrs. Donald V. Reed Jr.; acting headmaster Sanford B. Bing; Mrs. Peter R. Knipe; Mrs. Peter M. Grounds; William S. Greenberg; Mrs. Edward E. Matthews; Tristram B. Johnson; Mrs. Thomas W. Propulsion Center in Ewing.

The Naval facility has a $2.5 million contract for testing the jet engine of the cruise missile, which is part of the new generation of first-strike nuclear weapons. The Pershing II is also in this category.

The vigil is being conducted on the third anniversary of NATO's 1979 decision to deploy 464 Cruise and 108

Pershing II missiles throughout Western Europe, where simultaneous demonstrations are also being organized. The deployment of the missiles is scheduled to begin late 1983.

"In our efforts to freeze and reverse the nuclear arms race, we must pay special attention to those first-strike weapons which put a hair trigger on nuclear war," said the Rev. Robert Moore, coordinator of the Coalition. "The Cruise and Pershing II are the first such weapons planned for deployment, and will create a Cuban Missile Crisis in reverse in Europe," he said.

No More A & P?

Rumors about super-market closings are as common as hamburger and just as likely not to last very long. This time, however, it seems to be different.

The head of Local 1360 of the United Food and Commercial Workers says he's been told by the A & P that it will close its Princeton and Mercer Mall stores — among others — perhaps to re-open them as Super Fresh stores, which belong to a wholly-owned subsidiary of A & P.

The resident manager of the Princeton Shopping Center said she hadn't even heard the rumor, and added that the A & P signed a 20-year lease with the Center in 1977. Harold Goldberg, who manages the Center, declined to comment.

So did the A & P, whose officials did not return phone calls.

Marge Cahill, manager of the Princeton A & P for only two weeks, said she knew nothing. Tony Zamparelli, manager at Mercer Mall who preceded Ms. Cahill in the Princeton post, said he was not closing.

Brian and Kathleen McMahon, Northgate Apartments 140H, Cranbury; and Kenneth and Susan Wonderland, 205 Loetscher Place 3A, all on November 2.

Sons were born to Charles and Tody Cinquemani, 919 Jamestown Road, East Windsor, November 26; William and Valerie Seiler, 113 Mirybrook Road, Hamilton Square; Carl and Jeanette Hoffman, Broadway Avenue, Belle Mead; Nathan and Shoshana Goldblatt, 30 Beechcroft Drive, East Windsor, all on November 27; Francesco and Joanne Lettieri, RD 2, Box 447, East Amwell Road, Hunterdon; Nicholas and Cynthia Rossi, 45 Carlton Avenue, Trenton; John and Jo Ann Eliason Jr., 2617 Main Street, Lawrenceville, all on November 28;

Also to Laurence and Phyllis Karmel, 6 Hastings Road, Kendall Park, November 29, Richard and Solid symbol of the rugged chronometer it caps is the patented Triplock winding crown. Precision tooled, tough as tempered steel, it screws down on the Oyster case like a submarine hatch. It seals this stylish, masculine Submariner-Date down to 1,000 feet with double protection. ### Religious Flyer Offensive.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
I was surprised to find a Christian evangelical tract enclosed with this week's edition (December 2) of TOWN TOPICS.

It is my understanding that the material was submitted to the paper as a "paid advertisement" and that, as such, it was accepted and enclosed as any local business flyer would be. As a paid advertisement, there are probably no legal or policy criteria by which this tract could or should have been rejected. I would suggest, therefore, that a criterion for not distributing religious tracts with a newspaper, paid for or not, would have to do with good judgment.

One comes to accept the nuisance of flyers touting cheap loans, carpet sales, and going-out-of-business extravaganzas falling out of one's magazines and newspapers. One also gets accustomed to the obtuse pronouncements of world-saving mystics paid for and appearing in even our most prestigious journals. However, I find a religious tract being slipped sneakily into my home under cover of a newspaper to be offensive.

What next? Messages of salvation wrapped in lead-proof envelopes and sequestered in my milk cartons? Calls for repentance slipped into my electric bill? I will read with amusement or amazement what is printed within the columns and confines of your newspaper, or I will ignore it. But I resent the enclosure of religious material as if it were of the same order as mark-down power tools.

Rabbi Glatt has spoken with me about this matter and we concur in urging you to carefully reconsider your policy before allowing this incident to become a precedent for your publication becoming a device for tract distribution.

On Helping the Blind.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
...I have just returned with a new guide dog from the Seeing Eye school in Morristown, and several experiences have reminded me of problems guide dog users frequently have with the public. I am sure we are all grateful for the interest and concern of sighted persons, but I would like to make three things clear.

1. When a guide dog and its master are facing an unusual situation -- a construction barrier, let us say, or a ditch -- both are thinking. The master is trying to identify the barrier and coordinate his movements to the dog attempting to guide him around it. He is as preoccupied as a baseball player circling under a fly ball, and he may not seem very friendly, courteous, or appreciative, if you talk to him in the process. He is not intending to be rude, just preoccupied.

2. Guide dogs can and do make mistakes, but they and their masters are trained to solve problems such as construction barriers. It is almost always wrong to lay hands on a blind master and try to lead him.

On Nassau Street, the other day, a kindhearted stranger insisted on leading me around construction machinery in a long awkward, and confusing detour. On the way back, my dog was able to circumvent the machinery neatly by herself. Today a worker at the site insisted on helping again. When he grabbed my arm, I dropped my dog's harness handle and put her at heel on short leash. He led us so close past the machine that she got a blast of hot exhaust in her face, and I bumped into a sign. We don't mean to be ungrateful, but nine times out of ten -- perhaps more -- we can handle these things better alone.

3. A dog in harness is a dog on duty, whether it is actually guiding its master at the time or not. As a condition of being allowed into stores, restaurants, and other public places, guide dogs are supposed to stand, sit, or lie quietly. No one, not any one at all, should try to speak to, pat, feed, or otherwise distract it.

Readers will be helping me, my dog, and other guide dogs and their masters if they will keep these things in mind. Thank you.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

One of our family traditions has been to go to Palmer Square to buy our Christmas tree from the Boy Scouts. Each year we would find the perfect tree for our living room, and we were also pleased to help the Scouts in their important troop money raising effort.

This Christmas season there are no trees for sale in Palmer Square we discovered. Apparently the Collins Development Corporation did not feel that Boy Scouts and Xmas trees fit in with their business plan for the community.

We were happy to learn the Scouts had been offered a place to display and sell their fine selection of trees. The Arts Council has made the grounds of their building on the corner of Paul Robeson Place and Witherspoon available. So look for the Boy Scout trees diagonally across from the library or drive around to Green Street so they can load your car more safely.

CANDLELIGHT TOURS PLANNED: Rockingham, General Washington's headquarters in Rocky Hill, will be the scene of candlelight tours from 2-5 every weekend in December beginning this Sunday, when a special open house will include 18th century music and refreshments. Members of the Stony Brook Garden Club have decorated the rooms in traditional colonial manner. From left, Mrs. Arthur F. Hopper, Mrs. Richard Hayes and Mrs. John A. Pell fashion a wreath using herbs grown in the 18th century Herb Garden which their club maintains at Rockingham. The Clarke House at the Battlefield in Princeton has been decorated by the Dogwood Garden Club for candlelight tours every Saturday and Sunday from 2-5 p.m. Visitors may park at the house.

And as for the Collins Corp., may the ghosts of Christmas warm your skinflint heart!

Notes From Fox Head.

To the Editor of Town Topics: Fox Head Press wishes to thank Town Topics and Barbara Johnson for their story about the publication of the late Frederic Fox's Princeton Chapel sermons.

One correction needs to be made: the actual printing of the book was done in the basement of Trinity Church, Princeton. Most of the copy preparation and layout, however, was done at home. Fox Head Press is like Town

Topics in this respect: that we have to go outside our offices to get our finely crafted publications printed. May we both hope to receive printing presses for Christmas!

In speaking of Fox Head Press's debt to Trinity Church, it seems right to mention that the Church now has on sale to benefit their choir a series of four different Christmas cards, three of which were printed by Fox Head Press. They are available through choir members and at the Trinity Church office (924-2277).

DONALD H. FOX
P.S. Enclosed is a small contribution to the Christmas Fund. I will give more, if I sell a few more books.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

At Bainbridge House. Members and friends of the Historical Society, holiday shoppers, and the public in general are invited to enjoy the historic spirit of Christmas at Bainbridge House.

The Society's Georgian home will be festively dressed for the holiday season. Beginning on Thursday, December 16, and continuing until December 23, Bainbridge House will be open from 12 to 5. The regular museum hours have been extended to give visitors time to enjoy Christmas music, candlelit rooms and period Christmas decorations arranged by members of the Contemporary Garden Club, notably Minxie Minton and Betsey, Patty and Wayne Doubles.

The Museum's Book and

Gift Shop, managed by Ricki Baker, Sharon Bilanin and Patty Kassling, has been stocked with a variety of items for Christmas giving. "New" merchandise includes commemorative plates from Lenox of Princeton's historic houses, an assortment of all decorative boxes, hand-quilted pillows and potholders, reproduction folk pottery and Williamsburg brassware. Also offered are some pieces of antique Canton ware and table linens.

Those interested in books will find a selection of books related to state and local history, children's books and the Historical Society's most recent publication, "Princeton History," Number 3.

Bainbridge House, museum and offices, will be closed December 24, 25, 26 and 31. During January and February Bainbridge House will be open Sunday, from noon to 4 and by appointment.

'WAY' MOVES ON

Toward Goal. Money from people who live in the United Way area usually accounts for about 26 to 28 percent of all United Way contributions, according to campaign chairman Michael Kollar. Most United Ways receive about four or five percent of their contributions from a residential solicitation, he added.

And so far, residential solicitation has reached 76 percent of its goal. This represents $185,000, leaving $78,000 more to be raised. The Historical Society's Marjorie G. Blaxill and Elizabeth H. Sword are chairmen of the residential solicitation committee.

The Way also announced that employees of Johnson and Johnson Baby Products in Skillman donated $41,000 to the United Way. The contribution is a record, exceeding last year's contributions by $3,600, according to J. & J. campaign chairman Michael Carey.

In the company's campaign, an employee dressed as E.T. roamed the company cafeteria distributing candy. One hundred employees who had contributed were entitled to participate in a turkey drawing — names chosen by the E.T. employee.

He also picked the names of four other contributors to win E.T. dolls that had been in the basket of a helium balloon floating in the J. & J. building atrium.

Contact can be made at any stage in this interval. The service puts callers in touch with Penelope Chase, an experienced professional skilled in helping those concerned briefly identify their hopes, fears and wishes so that they may effectively pool and channel their energies during this time. Once needs are identified, the caller is referred to the appropriate resources.

For information, call the YWCA Adult Program Director, Liz Adams, at 924-5571. There is no charge for this service, which is offered as a community service by the Princeton YWCA.

TO RECEIVE AWARDS

From University Alumni. James A. Baker, III, chief of staff and assistant to President Ronald Reagan, and Lewis H. Sarett, senior vice president for science and technology of Merck & Company, Inc., will be honored by their alma mater at the 68th annual midwinter meeting of Princeton University's Alumni Association to be held on February 26.

Mr. Baker, a member of the Princeton University Class of 1952, will receive the Woodrow Wilson Award, given annually to a Princetonian who distinguishes himself or herself "in the nation's service."

Mr. Sarett, who received his Ph.D. from Princeton in 1942, will receive the University's James Madison Medal, an annual award recognizing alumni of Princeton's Graduate School who have distinguished themselves in their professions, have advanced the cause of graduate education, or have achieved a record of outstanding public service.

The annual midwinter meeting of Princeton's alumni association takes place on the main floor of Jadwin Gymnasium in conjunction with a luncheon for more than 1,500 returning alumni and their guests.

FOR EINSTEIN

Press Receives Grant. An interim grant of $120,749 from the National Science Foundation has been awarded to the Princeton University Press for work on The Papers of Albert Einstein.

The grant will support the editorial work of Professor John Stachel and his colleagues, while the Foundation considers a larger proposal for long-term support. In addition, the grant will pay for translating selected Einstein documents, and this project will help the editors decide how much translation they should attempt for the overall project.

Dr. Stachel expects editorial work for Volume I to be completed by the end of 1983. The entire project will occupy many years.

A joint project of the Press and the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, work on the Einstein papers has been supported, in the past, by The Sloan Foundation, the Press and the National Science Foundation. The editor's salary is endowed by a gift of $1 million from Harold W. McGraw Jr., chairman of McGraw Hill Publishing Company.

The Press, which will bear the cost of publishing the volumes, hopes to be given additional funds by various organizations as work progresses.

TO READ POEMS

At Coffee House. Princeton Writers' Center will hold its final poetry reading of the fall series on Monday, December 13, at 7:30 at Cafe au Lait, 66 Witherspoon Street. Princeton residents Laird White and Ron Kostar will be the featured poets.

Ms. White, poet and lyricist, is best known for the comedy routines and skits she wrote for the Inn Cabaret at the Nassau Inn.

Mr. Kostar has degrees from Bucknell University and City College of New York and is a research assistant in the Psychology Department at Princeton University. His poems have been published in a variety of little magazines.

For further information, call 924-3511 or write to Princeton Writers' Center, 10 Nassau Street.

CHRISTMAS TREE SALE

At New Location. Boy Scout Troop No. 43, sponsored by the Nassau Presbyterian Church, will sell trees this year outside the Art People's Center, corner of Witherspoon Street and Paul Robeson Place.

The Troop was denied permission by Collins Development Corporation to sell trees on Palmer Square as it had for many years. Learning that the boys had trees to sell and no place to sell them, the Arts Council offered the Troop space at the Art People Center.

Hours are Monday-Friday from 3-5 and Saturday from 9 to 5.

December "Readings Over Coffee" at the Public Library. Dr. Donald Ecroyd, professor of speech at Temple University, has selected Daphne du Maurier's "Happy Christmas" and Roark Bradford's "How Come Christmas?" for reading Wednesday, December 15, at 10:30.

Everyone is invited. Refreshments will be served.

YOU'RE INVITED

To Trim Scanticon's Tree. Take along an ornament from your native country — United States included — and help trim the 16-foot International Tree at Scanticon. The conference center off Route One will be host to the community at 3 this Saturday.

Four other trees, ranging upward from six feet, will join the 16-foot forest stalwart in the Scanticon lobby. One has been decorated by Scanticon staff; one will be decorated in Danish style, reflecting Scanticon's home country; one will be dressed in holiday pastries and the last will be decorated in a musical theme by members of the Apprenticeship Choir of the American Boychoir.

That choir will sing carols and other seasonal music, at 5. Santa is scheduled to appear with gifts for small members of the gathering and traditional Danish glog and something described as "other holiday treats" will be served, compliments of Scanticon.

There will also be a demonstration of Ikebana, the art of Japanese flower-arranging, by the Japanese wives of graduate students at Princeton University.

Scanticon has scheduled a Christmas buffet at 11, 1:30, 4 and 7 on December 25 and a brunch from 11 to 3 on December 26.

SPECIAL EVENTS SET

In Kingston. For Shoppers. The Kingston Business & Professional Association will sponsor a number of events this Saturday from 10 to 6 to highlight the Christmas spirit in Kingston.

Beginning at 10, merchants of the KBPA will serve holiday cheer to holiday shoppers and offer suggestions for completing Christmas shopping lists. Kingston shops offer jewelry, antiques and interior decorating ideas, among other items.

The Ladies Auxiliary of Kingston will be the hostesses for the annual "Lunch with Santa" at 11:30. Jongie the Clown will entertain the children, and a pine cone decorating contest will be held. The cones will be hung on Kingston's first Christmas tree.

The South Brunswick Community Chorus will sing in front of Good Time Charley's at 11:30. Mrs. Claus will appear at 3, and at 4:30, the tree ornament contest judging will take place. The Association wants only biodegradable or environmentally safe ornaments. The winning entries will be hung in the Kingston Post Office or on the tree.

At 6, informal caroling will begin as the first Christmas tree lighting ceremony in Kingston takes place. All are welcome. For more information call Cree McCougal, 921-0895.

Margaret (Peggy) Young, daughter of Donald R. and Eleanor S. Young, 18 Nelson Ridge Road, is home after spending two years as a Peace Corps volunteer in the west African nation of Senegal.

A 1976 history graduate from Manhattanville College, Miss Young served in the capital city of Dakar where she was involved in a pilot project under the Ministry of National Education to train primary school teachers in health education, hygiene, sanitation, first aid, nutrition, and disease prevention. She worked with teachers in four schools, and along with other Peace Corps volunteers, compiled a teachers health manual that was printed with funds from the American Embassy.

Her Peace Corps experience was accepted as credit toward the Master's degree in International Administration that she is currently pursuing at the School for International Training in Brattleboro, VT.

Thomas N. Loser, 14 Finley Road, was elected chairman of the Rubber Division of the American Chemical Society at its October meeting in Chicago. The Rubber Division, with some 5,000 scientific and technical members, is the world's largest technical organization connected with the rubber industry.

Mr. Loser, a 1972 graduate of Wesleyan University, is president of Wyrough and Loser, Inc., a Trenton manufacturer of specialty chemicals for the rubber industry. He holds several chemical patents in that field.

He is a past chairman of the affiliated Philadelphia Rubber Group and has served the Rubber Division as chairman of its membership and public relations committees. He was director-at-large in 1977 and has long been a member of the finance committee.

TWO CENERINOS: Violet and Felix, with a last name known in Princeton for over half a century. Cenerino's, on Leigh Avenue, is now a restaurant, as well as a lounge.

Cenerino's Lounge 50 Years Old Next July, Has Been Remolded into Restaurant As Well

In the years of the '30s, shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Manfredo Cenerino opened their Leigh Avenue lounge, Archangela Cenerino would cook wild game and rabbit on her wood stove, and serve it with her own spaghetti and the bread she had baked in that stove, free of charge to the customers who came to the lounge.

She is retired now and Manfredo Cenerino is no longer living. But one of their four sons, Felix, and his wife, Violet, are now serving dinners and breakfasts in Cenerino's Lounge, in the building that has been Cenerino's for almost half a century.

With a smile of dignified sweetness, Mrs. Cenerino says the days of the free lunch have, regrettably, passed

"I'd been serving only lunches for the past four years," she begins, "then eight weeks ago, after we finished our remodeling here, I began to serve breakfasts and dinners, too."

The long, narrow building has been re-arranged so that a dining-room seating 40 is now in front, where the bar used to be. The bar itself — and 34 can be seated there — is now behind a partition and through a door at the rear. Mr. Cenerino was the remodeler: all the warm wood paneling, the recessed colored panels in the ceiling, the wall-to-wall carpeting, are his craftsmanship.

"Phil grew up here, you know," says his wife, in reference to Felix. He and his brother Angelo used to work in the bar. And he had his own bar near the corner of Birch and Witherspoon, but he sold it and came here.

"The lounge will be 50 years old next July," and she smiles again. "They started it right after Prohibition. And you know, the houses in this neighborhood were built after this building — there wasn't ANYTHING here at that time. We live upstairs. It's a big apartment that goes the whole length of the building."

The dining-room has a quiet, bustling warmth at dinner-time, with white linen and candles on the table. Chef Roosevelt Stephen, hired away from the Nassau Inn by Mrs. Cenerino, is in the kitchen cutting the veal for a Marsala (no frozen meats, here). Using his own recipe, he stuffs the shrimp with crab, nothing hut crab, and not a bread-crumbs in sight.

Mrs. Cenerino herself has made the sauce for the pasta — the ravioli, or the pencil-points served with every dinner after the diner has come back from the salad bar. Soup is home-made, fresh every day.

"We're the only place in town that serves grits for breakfast. People come here, just for the grits. One of our customers asked us to serve grits, and it's been a big success

BUSINESS In Princeton

24-HOUR BANKING

At Princeton Bank. A new customer service called MAC has been introduced by Princeton Bank at all three of its Princeton locations — and in four more of its 15 locations, as well. In Princeton, MAC is at Nassau Street, Route 206 and the Princeton Shopping Center.

MAC automated tellers handle all regular banking business. Customers have a MAC card coded with their personal identification number. To use MAC, the customer inserts the card into the machine, pushes the appropriate buttons and: withdraws cash, makes deposits; transfers money from checking to savings or vice versa; makes loan payments and finds out what the balance is in checking or savings accounts.

"MAC customers avoid rush hours," says Jayne Fuge, director of marketing, "by using MAC evenings or weekends. Most people find they don't have to fit the bank into their working hours schedule any more since they know they can 'Meet MAC' when it's convenient for them."

"In addition to our seven MACs," says Princeton Bank President James Stewart III, "there will be dozens of MAC tellers at other bank locations in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and our customers can use them all. Whether people are on business in Philadelphia or on vacation in

PLANS FOR NASSAU COURT: Gilda Aronovic of Henderson Realtors, John Henderson and Richard Dickson view plans for Nassau Court, a group of 10 townhouses which will be built on Houghton Street in the Borough.

Ocean City, they'll never be far from MAC."

APPROVAL GRANTED

For Townhouse Project. Having gained the approval of the Borough Zoning Board recently, construction of Princeton's newest townhouse project, Nassau Court, is under way.

John T. Henderson, Inc., exclusive realtors for the project, has announced that all 10 townhouses will be available for purchase during the next few months with completion dates planned for next spring.

Located on Houghton Street across from Princeton High School, Nassau Court will be clustered in two buildings of five units each, surrounding a formal courtyard. Brick and wood will be used to reflect a combination of traditional and contemporary designs, rendered by the architectural firm of Chapman and Biher.

The units are being constructed by Richard Dickson, builder of the Province Hill in Lawrence Township and the Riverside Townhouses in Ewing Township. Prices will start at $180,000 for the two or three bedroom units.

Gilda Aronovic of Henderson's Princeton office will be the managing director of Sales for Nassau Court.

AWARDS GIVEN

For Chamber Memberships. Sixteen members of the Chamber of Commerce received awards last week in the form of gift certificates for recruiting at least two new members. Winners were Ruth Beers, Teri Benanti, Paul Chesebro, Robert Clark, George Hennessy, Ellen Hodges, Peggy Hughes, Donald Loff, June Mahon, Al Martin, Bill Quinlan, Diane Procaccini, John Seiber, Leonard Smith, Vivian Snowman and Frank Tylus.

President Leonard Smith cited Albert Martin for his work as membership recruitment chairman. Chamber members have signed up 72 new members, making a total of about 650. Paul Chesebro was cited also for maintaining the current membership base.

OBITUARIES

Dr. Irving Wolff

Dr. Irving (Doc) Wolff, a retired RCA Laboratories executive who pioneered in the development of radar, died December 5 at Princeton Medical Center. He was 88 years old and lived at 111 Red Hill Road.

In addition to his work on radar, Dr. Wolff made important contributions in such diverse fields as acoustics, optics, radio, infrared detection, and radio frequency healing. In 1934 he demonstrated pioneer radar equipment to the U.S. Army Signal Corps at Atlantic Highlands, using reflected waves to locate and follow the progress of a boat sailing into New York Bay about a half mile off shore. The tests may have been the first successful use in the United States of what eventually became microwave radar.

In 1938 Dr. Wolff and his associates contributed to the development of the first installation of radar equipment on Navy combat vessels. His work led to the design of practical altimeter employing radar principles used in military aircraft and assault drones during World War II, and in automatic homing equipment for guided missiles.

Subsequently, he contributed basically to the development of the large-scale Teleran system that employed a combination of radar and television techniques to solve many problems of air traffic control and navigation.

Dr. Wolff was born in New York, he was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1916, and received his Ph.D. in physics from Cornell University in 1923. Following his graduation from Dartmouth, he served as a physics instructor at Iowa State College and at Cornell.

Later that year, Dr. Wolff joined the RCA Technical and Test Laboratory at Van Cortland Park in New York. In the early 1930s, he was transferred to Camden, the base for his radar work. Shortly after World War II, he was appointed director of the Radio Tube Research Laboratory of RCA Laboratories in Princeton. In 1951 he was appointed director of research, RCA Laboratories, and in 1954, he was elected vice president, research. He retired in 1959.

In 1948, the Navy awarded him its highest civilian honor, the Distinguished Public Service Award for his contributions to modern-day radar. The Franklin Institute in 1959 presented him with its Elliott Cresson Medal in consideration of his many important contributions to the science of electronics.

Long active in professional and educational affairs, Dr. Wolff was a Fellow of the American Physical Society, the Acoustic Society of America, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the Institute of Radio Engineers.

He served as an advisor to several educational, governmental, and scientific organizations. These included the Princeton University Physics Department, the Manhattan College Electrical Engineering Department, the Committee for the Improvement of Secondary Education in Science, State of New Jersey, and the Scientific Advisory Committee for the Association of Applied Solar Energy. He was a member of the Nassau Club and the Old Guard.

Dr. Wolff is survived by his wife, the former Consuelo Hope Huges and a daughter, Margaret Elizabeth Way, and two grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Friday at 3 p.m. at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road. The Rev. Dr. Edward A. Frost will officiate. Calling hours will be Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Kimble

Funeral Home, 1 Hamilton Avenue.

Catherine D. Wheeler, 74, died November 30 at her home in Toms River.

She was born in Princeton, and lived in Toms River for the last 30 years. She held a teaching certificate from Trenton State College and obtained a B.S. in education from Rutgers in 1937. She also held a master's degree from Rutgers.

She retired in 1975 as principal of East Dover School in the Toms River School System, where she taught and supervised for 26 years. She had also taught in the Seaside Park school system for 17 years.

She was a member of the National Education Association and the New Jersey Education Association, among other civic and educational organizations.

Survivors include her husband, Robert E. Wheeler; two daughters, C. Gail Wheeler of New York City and Dona L.

Wheeler of Amherst, Mass.; two brothers, Alexander B. Donald and Robert G. Donald, both of Princeton.

The service was held at the Presbyterian Church of Toms River. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to Westminster Nursery School, c/o Presbyterian Church, Toms River 08753.

Mary E. Thompson Shultz, 82, died December 1 in Princeton Medical Center.

Mrs. Shultz was born in Stoney Creek, New York, and had lived most of her life in Middletown, Conn., where she was a lifelong member of Trinity Episcopal Church. She was also a member of the Gold Star Mothers of America and the Montgomery Township Senior Citizens.

Widow of the late Heber Shultz, she is survived by her daughter, Diana Pfannebecker, with whom she lived; a sister, Muriel Martin of Gordonsville, Va.; and a brother, Albert J. Thompson of Middletown, Conn.

A Service of Lessons and Carols will be presented Monday at 7:30 in Miller Chapel, Princeton Theological Seminary, as the fourth in the Seminary's series "Traditions in Church Music." The service is adapted from the traditional Christmas Eve service of King's College, Cambridge.

The Princeton Seminary Chamber Singers, under the direction of Sally Bolitho, a Master of Divinity student, will sing both traditional and contemporary settings of English carols. A congregational carol-sing will follow the candlelight service on the front steps of Miller Chapel.

READING PLANNED

Of Auden Work. A reading performance of W.H. Auden's "For the Time Being: A Christmas Oratorio" will be given Thursday, December 9 at 7:30 in the Campus Theatre at Princeton Theological Seminary. Dr. G. Robert Jacks of the Seminary's speech faculty will direct the production, which features six second-year seminarians as readers.

The verse drama, encompassing events in the Christian story from the Advent of the Flight into Egypt, is a contemporary statement of the meaning of Incarnation. Auden's themes portray the profundity, the humor, the distaste and the tenderness with which the world receives the newborn child.

Dr. Jacks has directed and produced a number of dramatic and musical productions on the Seminary campus, including his own musical tragicomedy verily-Merrily! He has conducted workshops in speech and drama, and has been baritone soloist with the Princeton Opera Association and at the Nassau Presbyterian Church in Princeton.

The public is invited.

TORCH RALLY SET

By Youth of Jewish Center. The Princeton Young Judea, which includes students in grades 4-8 and high school students, will hold the Third Annual Chanukah Torch Rally on Sunday.

Student runners will meet at the Jewish Center at 3:30 and hold a marathon along a route through the Princeton community and then back to the Center for the lighting of a giant menorah. At 5 the congregation is invited to join the youngsters for traditional refreshments.

The torch will arrive in the Princeton community from Israel, in commemoration of the victory of the Macabees over the Syrians in 165 (B.C.). Each year since 1944, this torch has been carried throughout Israel. Young Judeans carry this torch as a continuation of the symbolism of this ancient festival.

Members of the Princeton community may call the Center office at 921-0100 for the route for the lighting of the giant menorah, or eight branched candleabrum, and for the traditional foods and songs.

NEW LOCATION SET

By Presbyterian Church. Princeton Presbyterian Church will begin holding Sunday morning worship services at the John Witherspoon Middle School, Walnut Lane, on December 12. The church originally met at in honor of the festival of Chanukah on Thursday at 1 in the Social Hall of the Center, 457 Nassau Street.

Chanukah, the Hebrew term meaning "dedication" is also called "The Feast of Lights" and lasts for eight days. It commemorates the Maccabean victory over the Syrians in 165 (B.C.) and the subsequent rededication of the Temple. Chanukah is celebrated by lighting candles for eight days as a reminder of the miracle of the cruse of oil which burned for eight days instead of one.

Traditional foods such as latkes, potato pancakes crisply fried in oil, will be served at the party. It is also traditional to spin a little top called a dreidel, with four letters written on it meaning "A Great Miracle Happened There." Traditional songs, such as Rock of Ages, will be led by Center President Arthur Meisel. Rabbi Melvin J. Glatt will also relate the tale of the Maccabees for those present.

Senior citizens from the community are welcome to bring a small grab bag gift.

LET'S

WINTERPROOFING—WHY, WHEN & HOW!!!

with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

WINTER weather can present the worst possible conditions for evergreens: lack of snow to provide needed moisture (but also to keep ground temperatures from harmful fluctuations), combined with high, cold winds can put these plants under severe stress. Frozen ground inhibits the intake of water through roots. At the same time, icy winds accelerate the process of transpiration (the passage of water out of the leaves in the form of watery vapor) through leaves and stems, resulting in a wilting condition known as "winter kill".

WINTER-PROOFING, sprayed on evergreen leaves and stems, forms a colorless, wax-like film which stops water loss through transpiration, but does not cut off oxygen and sunshine, therefore, there is no inhibition of plant growth.

Ideally, plantings should be sprayed with winter-proofing material once in early winter and again during a thaw period in later winter.

In Face of Continuing Library Budget Problems Local Citizens Ask Trustees Not to Cut Services

For people who use Princeton's public library, what is top priority for the library?

Keep it as is, or even more so, just don't cut it back.

It was 16 years ago this week — on December 6, 1966 — that the "new", or present, library building was opened. Before that, the entire library had been squeezed into the minute charm of Bainbridge House, the 18th-century building (next to the Garden Theatre) where the Historical Society now is.

Last Monday, the library board of trustees held a special evening meeting — usually they meet in late afternoons — so that citizens could attend and give the trustees their views about the library.

50 Citizens Attend. Over 50 people went upstairs into the meeting room that so many Princeton groups use for their own gatherings. They heard trustee president Janice Stonaker ask what library services they valued the most — "so we would know, in case we have to make choices," Mrs. Stonaker said later.

Almost unanimously, they agreed with the speaker who said that "top priority" is to hang on and not let anything go. There were almost no negative comments.

Like every other institution, the library suffers from lack of public money. It faces yet another annual budget battle with Borough and Township governing bodies both of which are, themselves, plagued by lack of money. Trustees — and both mayors sit as trustees — have submitted a budget 16.5 percent over the '82 budget.

In '82, the library ended up with only 5.7 percent more than it had in '81. And in '81, it actually received 1.2 percent less than it had the year before.

Cutbacks Possible. "We'll have to close, to shorten our hours, if we don't get what we need," Mrs. Stonaker warns. "Salaries will go up eight and one-half percent, and they represent 80 percent of our budget."

Citizens asked, in effect, "but are you trying hard enough?"

COMMUNITY LIBRARY: Although it was early in the day — 9:20, only 20 minutes after the library had opened — readers and browsers were already in the big reading room. The reader in the center is carrying a baby in a sling around her neck. The child's head is visible as a light circle.

Robert Staples, director of the library, makes these points:

- Princeton has as much state aid as it's likely to get.

- The Friends of the Princeton Public Library are not only extremely active and successful, they are probably one of the most productive "Friends" groups of any library in the country and that includes the bigger cities. It's hard to imagine what more they could possibly do.

- The library makes good use of its gift money.

- "Fund raising," Mr. Staples says, with uncharacteristic gloom, "is not easy."

Anonymous Donor. Last year and this, an anonymous donor has given enough money to keep the library open Thursday nights, Saturdays in summer and Sunday afternoons in winter. The first year's gift was $25,000 and the $7,000 left over was used to buy books. This year's gift is $16,000 and it will probably be gone by the last Sunday in February.

This summer, the library joyously welcomed a check from Commodities Corporation. Are there other corporate donors out there, waiting for a library card?

Legislators Invited to Visit. Mrs. Stonaker, a lawyer and an active Democrat who has been on Borough Council and who once ran for mayor, has channels to Trenton. Earlier this fall, she invited the State Senator and the two Assembly members who represent Princeton, to visit the library. They are Democrats. They came.

"I wondered whether libraries might not get some relief from the state," Mrs. Stonaker mused. "Could there be legislation exempting certain things from the budget caps? After all, books are a capital investment for us, just the way police cars are for a municipality. How about exempting book purchase from our budget cap?"

"They were sympathetic, although they pointed out to us that the state is poor, too. But it was very constructive to have them here."

And who knows? People often say the library is the victim of its own success. It's a community center where some people stay all day every day, where little kids go after school and are picked up at 5:30, where books and records are gobbled up like peanuts, where you have to buy new carpeting because thousands of feet have worn out the old one, where reference books are used until their spines break — except that the staff would never allow a spine to break — and money is needed simply because the place is used so much.

71% Are Card Holders. Mr. Staples' staff has typed out library cards for 19,475 people in Borough and Township. That's 71.5 percent of Princeton's population. Cardholders range from people barely old enough to spell out what the card says, to people who have been reading library books for 80 years.

Every three years, there is re-registration and it is going on now, having been started in August. Only three months have passed, but already 20 percent of the card-holders have signed up again.

One member of last week's audience remarked what a splendid resource the library is for someone retired, like himself. And, he added, it's even more important for children. One day, he reminded everyone, these children will be our elected officials, governing us, and we'd better provide them with a vital, living library.

Monday night's meeting may not have been quite the love-feast it sounds. One speaker chided the trustees for not being more aggressive in prying public money out of Borough and Township.

Another said the library looked suspiciously over-staffed. Yet this same speaker asked for a media center in the children's library.

A library, Mr. Staples will explain if you ask, is a labor-intensive operation. If you go in during a quiet time you may not see circulation desk staff busily checking out books. But they are backstage, sending out overdue notices, ordering books, typing registration cards.

"In 14 New Jersey communities, we're third from the top," is the proud statement of Mr. Staples, who likes to collect statistics, "in number of books circulated per staff member."

Then he will tell you that each staff member handles 11,200 per year. Montclair, he says, is computerized, but they only handle 6,700 books per staff member per year.

CHRISTMAS PAST: And before long, that's exactly what will happen, because "A Christmas Carol," in McCarter's annual production, will play for the last time this Sunday. Here is Penelope Reed, familiar as The Ghost of Christmas Past in the McCarter version.

News Of The THEATRES

"BY NAGLE JACKSON"
Play, at Stage Two. It's about a troupe of players in a small Eastern European country who find themselves tangled in political intrigue and subversion. A death threat looms over one of the actors if he or she delivers a certain line in a play. It's all resolved in a play-within-a-play finale, described by McCarter Theatre as "hilarious."

The play, "At This Evening's Performance," is by Nagle Jackson, Artistic Director of McCarter, who will direct, and it will be staged by McCarter's Stage Two department January 18-29. The theatre will be The Acting Studio, 185 Nassau.

"At This Evening's Performance" was read last spring in the Playwrights-at-McCarter series, where new works are given a staged reading. The drama critic of the Newark Star-Ledger wrote at the time, "a stellar and fulfilled addition to any season."

Mr. Jackson began work on his play some years ago at the American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco. He has re-written the script for this east coast premiere.

FROM BUNUEL
"The Phantom of Liberty," The survival of humankind in spite of its idiocies -- a tidy theme for a movie. It's Luis Bunuel's "The Phantom of Liberty," booked for Kresge Auditorium, Frick Chemical Building, Washington Road next Tuesday and Wednesday at 7:30 and 9:30 each evening.

Released in 1974, the film has just now been made available for non-theatrical distribution. "Phantom" consists of dozens of vignettes and stories that connect with a kind of dreamlike logic, without any complete or satisfying conclusion.

Misconceptions of reason and perversions of common sense form a common thread through the whole. Many familiar Bunuel ideas turn up: fetishists, the Church, riddles and jokes and outrageous associations. Monica Vitti, Michel Piccoli, Jean-Claude Brialy, Jean Rochefort and Adrianna Asti are in the cast.

You, Too, Can Go to Theatre Intime, Pay $5 And Figure Out Meaning Of Current Play

"GENUINELY EXPERIMENTAL": Tom Burka plays Herman Quitt, a "successful" businessman in "They Are Dying Out," the experimental play now on stage at Murray Theatre in a Theatre Intime production. Susan Wolfe, shown here, plays one of Quitt's department heads. It's a "genuinely experimental" evening of theatre, says TOWN TOPICS' reviewer.

Why does the program of Peter Handke's "They are Dying Out" on the Theatre Intime stage devote its front cover to the following message: "COST 1500 - set 500 - costume 200 - lights 100 - props 70 - sound 10 - publicity 250 - royalties 200 - Total capacity theatre intime: 212 - Seats 4.00 and 5.00 adults - 2.50 and 3.00 students - figure it out"?

For that matter, why is the play called "They Are Dying Out"? And why does the notice-board outside Murray Theatre feature a huge pack of Lucky Strike cigarettes beside the name of the play?

The key phrase in the paragraph quoted above seems to be, "figure it out." This reviewer, being conscientious if nothing else, went to see the play a second time in an effort to figure it out. The second time around he began to enjoy himself having by that time decided that it isn't really necessary to beat one's brains in a serious bid to find out what Herr Handke is driving at.

Handke is a 40-year old Austrian novelist and playwright whose first play - "Offending the Audience" - had four ordinarily dressed "actors" on a bare stage simply talking to the audience in a crescendo of insults. Specially strong disapproval was heaped on the kind of stage play the audience had presumably come to see.

Handke rebelled against the "illusionism" of the conventional theatre, which he claimed hides the "reality" that a writer is in duty bound to foster. How one is to produce this reality is not clear, but it certainly is not through customary stage trickery and role-playing.

Mocking Drama. "They Are Dying Out" is a recent play, and the Intime production marks only the second time ever that it has been done in English. The playwright has done a thorough job of mocking traditional drama's orderliness, logic and meaningfulness. Paradoxically, however, the characters are often so exaggerated and their actions so absurd that what we in the audience see is unreality, not reality. And that is often pretty funny.

Unreality (or illusion?) catches your eye the minute you enter the theatre. The stark set recedes from the audience in perspective, and at its furthest point are a low open doorway and two small windows. The ceiling line above them is about five feet higher than the stage floor, and actors about to enter can, and do, stand and talk with their heads above the ceiling and, of course, duck to come through the door.

A blank wall still further back glows weirdly red through most of the second act. Noises play their part: a wild cacophony of mingled TV commercial sounds opens the play; a medley of sarcastic retching noises nearly drowns out Herman Quitt as he struggles to express himself at the end

The characters I find hard to pinpoint; indeed they worry a good deal about their own identities, and sometimes do their best to be like each other. Quitt (Tom Burke), "successful" business man, when asked if he is not ashamed of himself for a dirty trick he committed, says he is not, but he would be ashamed of somebody like himself. The three tycoons whom Quitt outwits (Charles Webb, Thor Thors, Hal McCord) are an entertaining triad, at times they are uncomfortably close to our darker feelings about big industrialists, at other times helplessly different.

Kilb (Susy Cromwell), the minority stockholder who holds one share of stock in every corporation in the country, acts the gadfly and "clown at stockholders' meetings". Hans (Tommy McGloin), Quitt's fashion-plate butler, dreams of being like his master so he copies his handwriting and his gestures.

Paula Tax (Susan Wolfe), one of Quitt's department heads, tries to seduce her boss while lecturing him on the philosophy of advertising in the most beautifully acted scene in the play. Quitt's wife (Lucy Blackburn), nameless and neglected, is a comic figure in her first speechless appearances, a sad one as she vainly tries to express herself.

News of the Theatres

No Human Emotion. One "Trick" of the conventional theatre Peter Handke has excised successfully. There is not an atom of real human emotion in the play. Everything is on an intellectual level, whether it make sense or not. Douglas Schwalbe has directed the play with this consistency in mind, and much of the amusement that comes over to the audience is of his creation. He has performed another service in reducing a three-hour playing script to manageable proportions.

Maria DeSantis has designed the costumes. The word "design" is used advisedly, for the prevailing black, white and gray fit in with the artificiality built into the play. The set was designed by Edward Tuck, the lighting by Mark Boyer, and the sound by David Laur.

Richar Gilman, in The Making of Modern Drama, writes: "Hanke's plays are extremely resistant to conventional methods of criticism and critical reporting, and this is due to their radical lack of the usual elements of conflict between characters or ... within a protagonist." The present reviewer has struggled against this resistance with indifferent success. He hopes, however, that readers may judge whether "They Are Dying Out" is their dish of tea.

If they like to experience a genuinely experimental production, or if the laughter of first-night and third-night audiences is a guide to what they may find in Murray Theatre, it probably is. Remaining performances are on December 9, 10 and 11, at 8:30 p.m.

NEW MAGIC....

In "Nutcracker," A Christmas tree that really grows and lots of other new magic is promised by McCarter Theatre's stage designer Brian Martin for the 19th annual production, this year, of "The Nutcracker."

The Tchaikovsky ballet will be given, as always, by dancers in The Princeton Ballet, working in conjunction with McCarter Theatre. There will be 14 performances starting Friday, December 17 and concluding Thursday, December 23. Detailed ticket information may be obtained by calling McCarter's box office at 452-5200 between noon and 6, Mondays through Saturdays.

Members of the Princeton Ballet Company will be featured in the cast, joined by boys and girls who are studying ballet in the Princeton Ballet's School of Ballet. Traditionally, they appear in Act One, playing the parts of toy soldiers, mice and small guests at the Christmas Party. Princeton Ballet founder and director emeritus Audree Estey was the choreographer for this party scene.

The Princeton Ballet's "Nutcracker" has been performed for 12 years in the War Memorial Theatre in Trenton, and for three years at The State Theatre, New Brunswick.

AUDITIONS SET

For Workshop Production. Auditions for the first Princeton Community Players-Princeton Writers' Center workshop production are scheduled for Sunday, from 1-4 and Monday from 7:30-10:30 at the Players theater, 171 Broadmead. Two performances will be given, Friday and Saturday nights, January 14 and 15.

The play, "Parallelogram" by Hanna Fox, co-founder of Princeton Writers' Center, has had two staged readings this past year. A workshop production is primarily for the purpose of helping the playwright test the script.

Cast and crew have the opportunity to participate in the process and work with the playwright. Costs are kept at a minimum, but it is a full production with sets, lighting and costumes. They play will also be videotaped.

"Parallelogram," a four-character play, takes place in Frieda Baker's New York apartment before and after the debut of her cabaret show. It deals with the vicissitudes of her relationship with Ted Putnam, a struggling actor and with those of Harriet Stone, a former dancer, and her lover, Matt Klein, a sociology professor.

Frieda, a black woman in her late 30s, should ideally be able to sing and play the piano, but it is not essential for auditioning. Harriet, also in her late 30s, is white and should appear agile, since she formerly danced in musicals. Matt, the academician, is in his mid 40s; Ted, the aspiring actor, early 30s, with a slight southern accent.

Appointments are necessary for auditions. Call 924-3511.

ALL THAT BRASS

Canadians to Play. The five classically-trained musicians of Canadian Brass will include both Handel and Fats Waller in the program scheduled for McCarter Theatre next Monday at 8. The ensemble is appearing in a Music-at-McCarter series.

The concert has been sold out by subscription, but standing room locations are for sale at the McCarter box-office.

Composers represented on the program will be Handel, Purcell, Bach, Gabrieli, Rossini, Fats Waller and Bizet. A feature of the evening will be something described as an "abridgement" of Bizet's opera, "Carmen."

The ensemble consists of two trumpets, French horn, trombone and tuba. All musicians play 24-karat gold-plated matched instruments, especially designed and crafted by Renold Shickle, the Chicago artisan.

BACH SPECTACULAR

The Y Chamber Symphony's "Bach Spectacular"

has been part of New York City's Christmas music season for several years, and it will come to Princeton from six sell-out performances at the 92nd Street YM-YWHA and Alice Tully Hall.

The group played McCarter last season, and is scheduled for a return in '83-'84.

Tickets are available at McCarter's box-office. They may be ordered by calling 452-5200, Mondays through Saturdays from noon to 6.

With his hand-including Steve Marcus on tenor sax -- he makes frequent appearances on NBC's "Tonight" show.

"He's the best 'big band' drummer alive today," says Anthony Biancosino, Princeton High's studio band director. The concert is a benefit for the high school band.

"L'Enfance du Christ" by Hector Berlioz, will be performed by Musica Sacra, a 100-voice mixed chorus with orchestra directed by Associate Professor Barbara Lingelbach. The oratorio describes the holy family's flight from King Herod into Egypt.

Soloists will include tenor Brent Monahan as the narrator and centurion; and baritone Daniel Pratt, dean of the Westminster Choir College, singing the roles of Polydorus and Joseph. Rutgers music faculty members John Powell, bass, and Valerie Goodall, soprano, will be heard as Herod and the Virgin Mary, respectively.

A 45-piece orchestra will accompany the Musica Sacra chorus which includes members of the community as well as Rutgers students, faculty and staff.

Robin DeKleine, director of the upper school chorus, and Mary Kemp, who teaches middle and lower school music, have organized the program. Selections for the performance range from medieval tunes to contemporary religious music and "We Need a Little Christmas" from the musical "Mame."

TO GIVE LECTURE

On Handel's "Messiah." J. Merrill Knapp, a foremost Handel scholar and professor emeritus at Princeton University, will give a lecture on Handel's "Messiah" on Thursday, December 16, at noon at the Art People's Center. The lecture is planned in connection with the upcoming performance of the work by Princeton Pro Musica on Sunday, December 19, in the Trenton War Memorial Auditorium.

Prof. Knapp is a former director of the Princeton University Glee Club who regularly conducts the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs. His scholarship has focused on Handel's operas and in this lecture he plans to show how Handel's oratorios grew out of the operatic tradition.

The lunchtime lecture will be held at noon at the Art People's Center, 102 Witherspoon Street. Participants should bring a sandwich; coffee and tea will be provided. For more information about the concert, which is at 3 p.m. Sunday, December 19, or the lecture, call the Art People Center at 924-8777 or the Pro Musica at 655-0460.

SINGER, BUITARIST

In Folk Music Concert. The Princeton Folk Music Society will feature Jim Labig in a house concert on Friday, December 17, at 8 at the home of Art and Arlene Miller, 2 University Way, Princeton Junction.

Jim Labig has been called a "country singer of the highest order" with a "rare stylist's knack for letting his listeners in on what a song really means." He plays acoustic guitar (as well as some banjo and autoharp) and sings a variety of contemporary, and some traditional, folk and country songs. During the past several years he has become known for his singing of the songs of Bruce "U. Utah" Phillips.

Admission is $5 for adults, $3.50 for students, $3 for Society members. There are no advance sales. Memberships are available at the door. For further information, call 924-9143.

NEW COURSES PLANNED

At Westminster Conservatory. The Conservatory Division of Westminster Choir College is planning to expand its program of group instruction for the spring semester. Among the classes being added are several chamber music groups of diverse instruments, a recorder ensemble, piano ensemble class and ensemble training for children.

Teaching one of the chamber music groups and the ensemble training class is Jane Rosenfeld Siegel, a flute teacher and performer. Ms. Siegel is on the faculty of Princeton University and performs with The Trenton Symphony, the Little Orchestra of Princeton, Hunterdon Chamber Players, New York Camerata, Continuum and New York New Music Ensemble.

The purpose of this class is to bring together intermediate to advanced players of diverse instruments and expose them to the chamber repertoire and the joys of small ensemble playing.

The ensemble training class is designed for less advanced players who would like to develop the skills needed for chamber music playing: strong rhythmic sense, good sight reading abilities, listening skills. It will involve drills and exercises for strengthening these abilities and include work on some of the easier chamber repertoire.

The other Chamber Music group will be instructed by Junko Ota, who is a violinist with the New York City Opera Orchestra and who teaches Suzuki violin through the Westminster Conservatory. This class will be designed primarily for more advanced Suzuki string players wanting ensemble experience beyond the regular group instruction received in the early years of training. It will be open, however, to other instrumentalists as well.

For pianists who might enjoy duet and trio playing, a course is being offered on piano ensemble techniques. It will be taught by Peter Lauffer (an alumna of the Lawrenceville School) and his wife Marianne, who both teach private piano through the Conservatory as well.

Recorder players looking for some group experience might enjoy the recorder ensemble class being offered by Jennifer Lehmann. Ms. Lehmann is certified by the American Recorder Society and has taught extensively in the Princeton area. She has a master's degree in Early Music Performance from Sarah Lawrence College.

Another new class, "The Joy of Movement," is designed to help people to use their bodies with ease and confidence. Esther Seligmann, the course instructor, has taught dance for many years and recently augmented her dance training with certification in the Alexander Technique.

Music appreciation classes will also be offered this spring, both in Princeton and in the Cranbury extension of the Conservatory Division. The teacher for these will be Bridget Conrad, who has degrees from Yale University in both music and history. Ms. Conrad's particular interest is the music of India, in which she will also offer an introductory course at Westminster.

Other classes being added to the spring curriculum are elements of conducting, and harmony and music arranging. Classes which are currently in session - and to which additional sections may be added - are kindermusik, popular and folk guitar, jazz piano, voice class for adults, voice class for children, flute ensemble, piano lab, fundamentals of music reading and fundamentals of theory.

More detailed information is available through the Conservatory Division Office at Westminster Choir College, or by calling 921-7104 or 924-6359.

IT'S NEW To Us

SEASONAL JOYS

From Princeton Shops. There is an ineffable joy which comes from giving our all during this season, bedecking our lives with red and green for the friends and loved ones who will gather round our trees and our tables. The days are shorter and the weeks fly by because everyone is in a happy state of preparation whether it be awaiting children, parents, and friends to come home and join in the fun, or wrapping those very carefully selected gifts which have been an expression of love down through the centuries. Fortunately the Princeton area shops offer a wide spectrum of tasteful gifts as well as a wealth of creative decorations and fresh greens to deck our halls. Now is the time to let go, to celebrate the many blessings of living in a town such as this.

Wardrobe Assistance. Shopping has changed radically. Women no longer have time to while away the days (or several days) collecting a seasonal wardrobe, coordinating colors, matching handbags and shoes. Everything is more fluid now, fabrics textures and colors can be combined more creatively to achieve the desired contemporary effect. It seems to take more time to "put it all together" just when we have less to spend which is why we are so lucky to Bellow's here in Princeton.

At this shop there are several ladies who will assist the shopper in finding her own clothes or a husband in buying just the gift she would love this Christmas. It may be anything from a chic new, muted copper color silk cummerbund to a fur-lined raincoat. Bellow's has it all, but not too much so as to confuse.

There is an irresistible urge to dress up during the holidays. It is the one time of year when one cannot overdress. Spoil yourself a bit and show off those pretty shoulders with one of the shop's bare party dresses for evening. There are still many lovely taffetas in stock, several in the ever-present black of the season, with oversized sleeves, full dance skirts or sleek and sophisticated sheaths which hug the body. Sequins and lace can be seen everywhere. One particularly stunning dress is a black silk crepe Nipon, very classic with black jet beading at the shoulders and on the cuffs, a dress which will look wonderful for many years to come.

There is nothing more useful or economical than an attractive silk print dress, not only because they are flowing and feminine but because they can be worn practically all year long, travel well, and take up very little space. One cannot have too many of them. Bellow's has a fine selection of solids and prints by various designers, many of which are most reasonably priced.

Does your favorite girl need a new coat? Now is the time to buy one at the shop where a sale is currently in progress. Down coats and outer jackets, bright-colored wool coats and the fur-lined storm coats are all on sale.

Miss Kay Ryan, of Bellow's is a genius at collecting and putting together separates she buys, whether they be dressy evening ones such as the lacey tops, a bare camisole, or a black sequin blazer with a selection of velvets or taffeta skirts or the terrific new satinback crepe skirts, the simple tee shirt and pants to be combined with a stunning torso jacket. Silver beige and purple are great combinations with black but the quantity is limited so hurry to find your size. These separates are invaluable in a wardrobe.

There is a wide assortment of fabulous blouses at Bellow's including: print silks, tissue taffetas with leg 'o' mutton sleeves; Victorian cottons and lace; as well as the more casual variety to wear during the day with pants and jeans.

A small but effective gift which any lady would adore is one of the super belts found at the shop, such as the Renaissance silk cord ones with colorful braids and beading. Other very special belts are: a hand-hammered copper salmon colored hip belt; fanny wraps in suede or fabric which will jazz up a black dress; and those with beads and bright stones. These will surely catch the Christmas lights. Cumberbands of tossah silk in many colors are narrow or wide.

Unusual evening bags are thoughtful gifts. One of the prettiest seen is the small barrel shaped bead bag in stripes, perfect size to fit glasses and a cheekbook! Gloves and the best selection of textured tights and stockings can be found at Bellow's.

Looking ahead to travel and the warmer months, an alluring collection of cruise wear has arrived, highlighting bold polka dots, silk noile and many sweaters of 100 percent cotton and chenille. A sweater which can be worn all year is the multicolored blue, red and yellow rag knit.

Delicious Meals. From Toto's, Christmas is the time to blow the diet, not a time to be restrained while planning the traditional meals of the season. Delicious meats, poultry, fowl and selected foodstuffs from Toto's are a must while thinking about what to serve your guests. While ordering that sumptuous turkey (by December 18th) or whatever is the desired fare in your household, it will be convenient to do some shopping for unusual gifts as well.

During the season, many people enjoy giving homemade gifts and baskets full of gourmet delights. There is an abundance of cheese, preserves, imported and domestic crackers, nuts, teas and sweets at Toto's which will make welcome gifts. According to the Toto family, their customers have been ordering special prime cuts of beef to give as gifts. What would be more welcome than a gift of prime steaks, a treat in which many do not indulge very often.

For Christmas dinner, Toto's has frozen geese, quail, squab, and pheasant as well as the smoked fresh hams which will stretch through several meals.

A wonderful gift as you travel to other homes for the holidays or simply have sent over to a good friend's house would be a basket full of hand picked fresh fruits, cheeses such as sage blue or cheddar, some Wilken and Sons marmalade, almonds, teas, and imported cookies. The choices are abundant.

A small, thoughtful gift to take along with you for your hostess might be party cookies in unusual tins, such as the ones seen with old McCall's and Ladies Home Journal magazine covers. Children love the tins of animal crackers with the replica of

Gifts You Can Eat

There are many opportunities for gifts which will make the hostess's life easier during the holidays. Scrumptuous main course dishes and desserts prepared by La Cuisine sent or brought to a home will be greatly appreciated. A selection of fine cheeses, crackers, fresh breads, and their own preserves can be combined in a handsome basket to be served during these weeks.

Toto's has many choices to make a feast more delectable such as a foil-wrapped boxed smoked salmon or gift packages of prime cut roast beef or steaks, which will delight the whole family. Baskets of fresh fruits, cheeses, crackers, unusual teas, and perhaps one of the food shop's rare wine vinegars will please the gourmet in the family.

Throw caution to the wind this season and take a sweet trip to Thomas Sweet Chocolates where the selection of chocolates and hard candies is heavenly. Confections have always been a part of the Christmas tradition. The assortment of homemade fudge, chocolate creams and truffles, and other candies boxed in gay packages ready-to-give is abundant.

Ellsworth Liquors in Princeton Junction prepares hundreds of Christmas baskets each year beginning at $15. The finest imported and domestic cheeses and delicious French breads will compliment the spirits and wine the shop offers. A knowledgeable staff will assist the shopper in choosing just the right wine to accompany each cheese.

Barnum's 1914 circus and the famous Amos chocolate chip cookies.

A truly splendid gift of food would be the gold foil wrapped smoked salmon from the Pacific northwest which are sold in attractive boxes at Toto's for $34.99. A less expensive thought might be Les Petite, loaves of pyrenelle cheese of garlic, spice and caraway flavors boxed and wrapped in wax for easy mailing. Low in fat and sodium they are priced at $7.99.

It's New to Us

meal has been passed down through the years. Christmas dinner in many homes would not be complete without the after-coffee fine cigar or a pipe full of the favorite family blend. Tom Pipecarver and Son of Spring St. not only has a fine stock of pipes made here and in several other countries, fine custom blended tobacco, but an awesome collection of antique pipes which date back as far as the early 1800's.

In the tiny shop in which custom pipes are actually crafted there are many interesting gifts which would appeal to your choice smoker. Meerscham and Peterson briars beginning at $10 are of excellent quality and make good gifts. The full line of London Conroy's, Danish briars and Italian savinellis are among the imported pipes which can be found at Tom Pipecarver's.

Fine cigars from the Caribbean, Europe, and the U.S. are sold at a 10 percent discount at the shop which offers half size gift boxes too. A good idea might be to give the cigar smoker a mixed selection of his favorite smokes.

There are many gifts for the devoted smoker such as: lighters, including the electronic ones; stainless steel pipe tools; Dunhill humidors; and attractive leather items—all of which can be seen at Tom Pipecarver and Son.

Making Christmas beautiful is not limited to living and dining rooms anymore. Much of what is important during the holidays happens in the kitchen. Why not bedeck the kitchen and entertain there as well as in your home's more formal rooms? The Cummins Shop has many lovely and colorful accessories to make informal entertaining easier and more attractive.

A large supply of Le Creuset cookware can be found at this shop. The casseroles and pans make wonderful gifts and are the delight of a gourmet cook. These and the oven-to-table ceramicware are practical and handsome on a decorated table. The colorful potholders of Santa, a snowman, and a Christmas tree are inexpensive gifts, and will be cherished from year to year.

In addition to the wonderful selection of ornaments each year, the Cummins shop always features the wonderful Christmas china by Lenox and Spode. Why not start a collection this year for your favorite hostess? There are red and green table linens which will offset your holiday table this season as well as some convenient items for entertaining such as the "classy glassys", silver plastic glasses for large parties, and a wide assortment of cheese boards. Paper goods for Christmas include the Christmas goose and an English Christmas scene.

There are a number of useful appliances which will please the chef such as: the convection toaster by Salton; a yogurt maker; and many types of coffee makers and machines for cappuccino.

Good buys at the Cummins shop are the brass Christmas tree trivet and a reading stand for that new book.

There is a certain pride which one takes in one's home during the holiday season, a time when it must somehow look its best. Home Decor in the Princeton Shopping Center has many interesting items which will spruce up your home, making it more comfortable for all who visit this season, as well as a wealth of gift ideas for all ages.

Do the lamps look a bit tired? Try a new shade from the decorating shop. Do your linens look grey and untidy? Buy a few new sets to make sleeping more comfortable and attractive for guests. There is something at the shop which is new this year and may appeal as a gift, an electric mattress pad. It operates like an electric blanket but warms from underneath! What a treat during the cold months and a boon to energy savers.

Handsome new sheets and towels may be a practical gift, but they will surely be welcome. How many of us buy them for ourselves? Children will delight in a set of Miss Piggy, Kermit, Fozzie or smurf sheets and towels from Home Decor.

There are a number of gifts at the shop which must not be missed, gifts which will give comfort to the recipient such as: a colorful bedrest in corduroy; an inflatable pillow for the tub; a lucite cosmetic organizer called "pretty neat"; shaving mirrors which affix to the wall; and scented satin hangers in boxes of two or four.

Christmas linens are prettier every year as are the fingertip towels which make lovely impersonal gifts. The "man who has everything" could surely use a 24 gold plated toothbrush. A thoughtful and reasonable gift for a lady of any age would be one of the shop's delicate lace and eyelet embroidered pillows. A six-year-old would love a tiny pocketed one which says "tooth fairy." A wide selection of pillows in many fabrics will liven up an old couch or make a comfy present.

Stepping Out in Style. The sleek Italian shoes on Madison Avenue in New York are tempting, but we can find the same chic collections right here in town at Ricchard's. Step out in the terrific men's and ladies' shoes by Ferragamo, which have long been available at this shop.

The selection of Italian shoes and other fine imported designs is vast and, of course, the quality of same is superb. You will see the latest fashions by Bally, Bandolino, 9 West, and Morland of England as well as good American hand-crafted leather goods.

A new name in shoes has been brought to Princeton by Ricchard's, the footwear collection by Polo. The Ralph Lauren look combines the best of what is classic with an added flare of contemporary chic. The new casual shoes and slippers for men and women are nicely displayed at the shop which sells handsome leather handbags as well.

The lower flat and pump is definitely important in fashion this year, a wide variety of styles and new colors can be found at the shop. Teal blue, taupe, and burgandy are prominent shades which go with everything. These can be found in the higher slingbacks for dressier occasions or the flats for daytime and pant wear.

month at Ricchard's. Especially noteworthy are the fully-lined in sheepskin wool boots by Morland and the shorter cuffed suede boots to be worn with the shorter pants, seen everywhere.

A traditional Christmas gift for father is a cozy pair of slippers. They range from the thin leather travel sort of fleece-lined to the toasty slipper socks.

Weaving at Landau's. Hurried shoppers always have time to stop in at Landau's on Nassau Street during the holidays where the annual exhibit in the shop's large windows is both creative and festive. This year a talented young weaver from New Jersey, Kristin Nicholas, has brought her loom to demonstrate how she makes lovely scarves and blankets.

She will be at Landau's all month displaying how the wool from her family's farm in northern Massachusetts is sheared, processed, dyed and woven into gorgeous fabrics and gifts for Christmas.

Landau's itself is filled with a holiday bustle; it's the place where Princeton residents always go to find the warmest, lightweight sweaters, hats, mittens, and scarves available. Their exclusive Icelandic woolens have become a favored purchase for Christmas each year. Prices continue to be reasonable, it is an important part of the shop's policy, while the quality of their imports remain excellent. There are a few new arrivals this year.

In addition to the traditional handknit Nordic pattern for men and women, for the first time you will see some lovely hand-dyed woolen sweaters, in raspberry and slate blue. A softly hued white sweater woven in pinks and blues has been selected by Woolite as the number one sweater in the country!

Hats and mittens and gloves are good gifts from Landau's. A new design in Icelandic gloves at $17 has been a big seller, as is the terrific wool blanket in soft beige and brown for only $49. A new almost lacey wool triangular shawl will catch your eye this year at $55. Other Icelandic woolens include: ponchos; hooded coats in winter white; zip-up jackets for men and women.

Sportswear at Landau's is distinctive such as: long and short tartan kilts; boiled wool Austrian jackets in many colors; blazers, skirts and holiday velvets; and a delightful collection of patchwork "Suttles and Seawinds" cotton jackets and skirts from Nova Scotia.

Soft and Silky. The classic look never goes out of style however fabrics do change from year to year, usually for the better. This year at Piccadilly on Nassau Street there are some attractive gifts for women who like the soft and silky look but do not have the time for ironing or hand washing.

A shirt of Swiss kinkie cotton which requires no ironing, comes in eight soft colors including the new mulberry. A silk-like fabric blouse with a fetching ruffled neckline and a detachable bow tie in seven colors will look well with one of the shop's handsome velveteen skirts. The good news is that when part of the holiday feast spills on the front or cuff, it can be put in the washing machine.

The velveteen skirts come in black and plum coordinating with a stunning heavy quilted jacket which will serve as a wrap on warmer nights.

Another new arrival at Piccadilly is a soft dressy lambswool sweater with a cable knit front, flat back and a keyhole button at the nape of the neck. This sweater comes in several colors as do the shop's familiar Leon Levin shirts in solids and prints.

Lanz nighties and robes have always been a popular feature at the shop. There are many styles from which to choose in the cheerful prints some of which come with matching booties. The grannie gown, pajamas with or without feet, and night shirts go under matching double faced wrap robes this winter.

An inexpensive gift for girls of all sizes would be one of the hundreds of suede, leather or cobra belts in basic and fashion colors to be worn with one of the Piccadilly's gold dipped belt buckles. The collection of the adjustable buckles is vast, a perfect stocking stuffer for your girl.

A Girl's Best Friend. Juliana says "that diamonds are a girl's best friend," an old song, but one which still rings true not only because they are so beautiful, but because they are a good investment. Jewels by Juliana on Witherspoon Street has a glorious selection of diamond rings, pins, pendants, and bracelets many of which she has combined with other precious stones to make elegant treasured gifts for Christmas.

Aquamarines, emeralds, rubies, garnets, and sapphires await the generous shopper looking for that most special gift. However, the shop's owner insists that there are gifts of jewelry for "everyone's" packetbook this year. Prices vary greatly with the quality of the stones and there are many stunning semi-precious stones to be found and fashioned into a lovely necklace, bracelet, or ring for your favorite girl.

There is a great demand for pearls this year, according to Juliana, who designs all of her own jewelry. Gemstones and pearls with beads of gold make attractive combinations in single strand chokers to one with perhaps four or five strands. Among the prettiest noted are the necklaces of lapis, heavy pearl and gold; natural turquoise, gold and a geigne pearl; and garnets, gold and pearl.

There are many inexpensive gifts to be found at Juliana's such as the finely-worked American Indian silver and turquoise or the hand-beaded bangles from Africa for only $10! Chokers of agate, carnelian, amethyst, jade and turquoise begin at $27. The complete line of pulsar quartz watches for men and women begin at $70.

Ideas From Hinkson's. No matter what its contents, a tiny inexpensive gift in a beautifully wrapped box at

Gifts for Pre Teens

Teenagers are often the most difficult people on your list. They usually are very precise about what they want. Here are a few "safe" suggestions which may please the most discerning.

Clogs from Huli's seems to be one of the most popular items in footwear around. These and the Sporto boots, mud shoes or a Bermuda bag will appeal to an active youngster.

For those who have time to just "hang out" hopefully reading or listening to music in their rooms with the door closed, a large floor pillow from Home Decor is a must. They come in many patterns, as do the comfy bed rests in cordurey.

Clancy Paul's Electronic Candy Store in the Princeton Shopping Center is having a great sale on Atari game tapes. An assortment of sports and educational games will make terrific gifts for the young at $9.95.

Kopp's is tuned in with the younger set who can often be seen crowding the store after school hours looking for a racing helmet, a shirt, a new head light, or perhaps a lock for their bikes.

Allen's children's center has several "in" gifts for children including, OP slacks with an elasticized waist band, personalized laundry bags or sweaters (so they will not lose them at school!), polo shirts, and gloves, mittens and hats.

A new calendar or a diary from Hinkson's are gifts that are bound to please. A young girl might appreciate some new stationery.

There are some young people who love to dress up just as their parents do during the holidays. Bellow's children's shop has a delightful collection of taffeta, velvets, and other dresses up to size 14. The dropped waist and the Victorian look are favorites this year.

Little boys will look handsome and well dressed after a visit to the shop where they will find the classic grey flannels, velvets, button downs and blazer jackets in various colors.

The toddler set will be dressed alike. One of the loveliest brother-sister sets this year is the Florence Eiseman red jumpers. Tartans that match are washable and always look terrific.

Paddington Station awaits the grandmother at Bellow's and the Sherpa toys will make cuddly friends throughout the year.

It's New to Us

Christmas always expresses thought and affection. Hinkson's has a terrific assortment of gay holiday wrappings which are currently on display in the window. A stop in the conveniently-located stationery store will yield many gift ideas as well as Christmas cards in boxes and paper party plates, tablecloths, napkins and cups.

A handsome five-piece desk set at $19.95 in green leather would be the perfect gift for father. Several desk accessories seen will make life easier for those who spend long hours doing family accounts, drawing or writing tasks. There is a wide assortment of calculators beginning at $13.95. Staplers, automatic pencil sharpeners, and the new executive scan card system would be greatly appreciated.

The executive scanyard systems range in price from $14.95 in vinyl to $99.95 for the "chairman of the board" model. The attractive folding leather cases for men and women contain an appointment calendar; a telephone index; a built-in calculator; pockets for calling cards and credit cards; and a small file for up to 500 project cards to record ideas, memos, assignments and reminders. They are useful and productive management tools which can be carried along in a brief case. The latter are sold at Hinkson's as well.

There are a variety of paper party goods which will ease entertaining and make a pretty festive table such as those of solid red or green and an old-fashioned cream, green and red old-fashioned Christmas pattern. A large Santa Claus head will delight the young hanging either on the door or above a buffet table for parties.

The shop continues to supply Princetonians with a large selection of computer supplies including furniture for such use. Brightly-colored lamps for a computer table or desk is always a welcome addition to a room.

A good selection of 1983 calendars can be found at Hinkson's including the complete line of academic and a week-at-a-glance ones. The wipe-off and cork boards are fine gifts for children who love to doodle and parents who like to leave messages or remind their youngsters that there are chores to be done around the house. The cork board has become an essential part of the household.

For the Handyperson. Gifts from the hardware store might not seem all that exciting, but there are several at Princeton Hardware in the Princeton Shopping Center which will make life easier for the homemaker and the handyperson around the house. An abundance of tools and small appliances are currently on sale for the holidays for a limited amount of time.

What is more luxurious than waking up to the smell of freshly brewed coffee? The G.E. drip coffeemaker with a built-in wake-up alarm is reduced to $36.49 while the useful G.E. toast-r-oven is only $44.44. A small G.E. portable radio which will bring music in such work areas as the tool room and the kitchen is only $21.49.

Everyone who has desperately searched the house for a flashlight would like the store Eveready fluorescent lantern for $17.99. The tool-minded will enjoy a $9.89 vise-grip tool set or the Dremel moto-tool kit for $30 off the regular price.

The serious carpenter could use one of Princeton Hardware's newer tools such as: a high-speed Skil sander; a variable speed jig saw; a 5-inch bench grinder; or perhaps a Black and Decker table saw. The workmate work center by Black and Decker is indispensable to the avid carpenter.

Would it not be nice to come home late and have dinner all ready? Buy an electric crock pot at this shop for a friend or deep-fry cooker which will cook dinner up in a hurry. The children in the family would love an electric corn popper.

Digital clock radios, hair dryers, a clean air machine or a home hair trimming set are nice personal gifts. An impersonal house present might be an indoor-outdoor thermometer or the fantastic dustbuster, a hand vacuum.

Christmas lights, tree stands, and gift wrap are now in stock.

Fine Gifts in Leather. No need to joust for space in a long line at the crowded department stores or the city's fine leather shops, when we have one right here in Princeton. At Luttmann's Luggage shop on Witherspoon Street you can find elegant and distinctive gifts in the finest quality leather on the market.

In an unhurried atmosphere, you can choose your gifts with confidence that the quality and workmanship are the best whether they be large pieces of luggage or a 1983 leather calendar or appointment book small enough to fit in your hip pocket. The selection of items for travel, work, and for the simple pleasure of owning pieces which will last for many years is vast at Luttman's.

Handbags made with exquisite craftsmanship in Germany featuring several pockets and two lengths of straps are wonderful gifts in wine, red, brown, navy, black and taupe. The German imports are new this year in the shop, which stocks more than 500 top grain leather handbags for women.

The coach bags by Dooney and Bourke and the Kelly bags are practical gifts for ladies who give their bags a lot of wear and tear.

There are many handsome gifts of leather especially for Luttman's such as the useful deerhide folders lined in kipskin which hold the month or week-at-a-glance calendars or a legal pad. For the person "who has everything," the shop has custom-made hunting and folding knives and hand-crafted English pewter flasks for men and ladies. That is one way to slave off the cold!

A letter organizer with compartments for stationery, calling cards, and stamps or an efficient brief case with several pockets in gorgeous wine, brown, or black leather would make an elegant gift for the lady on the go.

A fine gift for a student or for one who travels with bulky gear would be Luttman's lightweight trunk in red, a duffle made of nylon which holds up to 7,000 cubic inches and costs only $60.

Smaller gifts from this shop might include a selection of nail kits in leather cases, wallets of all sizes and shapes, belts, key rings, passport cases, note books, and checkbook covers.

Of course the ultimate gift from Luttman's would be a set or a piece of luggage. The hurried traveler would appreciate one of the shop's under-the-seat suitcases to accommodate more efficient travel luggage in leather and fabrics by all of the top companies are available there.

Clothing The shop continues to rent evening clothes for men including white tie and tails for the most special occasions.

Getting Personal. Perhaps the most educational and diverting family gift to give this year is a personal computer. Clancy Paul, The Princeton Computer Store has a wide selection of business and personal computers to offer its customers from the Coleco game computer sold at their Electronic Candy Store for under $100 to the top-of-the-line Apple II Plus at their main shop, both of which are in the Princeton Shopping Center.

It's New to Us

blouses, tights, and leg warmers can all be worn under this practical dress which comes in 38 super colors.

Small presents from A La Mode are abundant and unusual such as: hand made plastic combs, barrettes and jewelry in primary colors; large gold and bronze earrings and cuff bracelets; belts with huge gold buckles; and a carved soapstone cache perfume oil for only $3.

The Kuhn family has been experts in cycling in Princeton for many years. It's new shop is more visible on Witherspoon Street where shoppers are bustling up and down trying to think of an appropriate gift to express gratitude and affection on Christmas. A traditional gift for children and now increasingly for adults is a shiny new bicycle. Kopp's has an excellent selection of the top quality bicycles and the service afterwards to maintain them.

Fred Kuhn sells the Schwinn BMX motorcross bike for children from 6 to 20 because he feels they are the best by far in quality and performance, a bicycle which can be passed down through generations. A terrific selection of colorful BMX bikes can be seen in the window. Buyers should know that the shop has a $10 layaway plan which enables one to pick up the bike as late as December 24th.

New bicycles must be assembled, so it would be wise to make your selection this week and definitely before December 20th. There will be free delivery of bicycles purchased before Dec. 15.

The Schwinn family, whose

Gifts Under $10

There are a variety of inexpensive gifts to be found in the Princeton area shops. A handsome cuff bracelet hand-beaded in Africa would be a lovely gift for a lady at $10 at Jewels by Juliana.

A La Mode has many interesting gifts under $10 such as the cranberry or black velvet dress slipper to be worn at home or to parties for only $7.95 through size 11.

A set of satin hangers in boxes of two or four from $5.49 or a luxurious inflatable pillow to use while relaxing or reading in the tub at $8.98 are good ideas from Home Decor.

company was founded 86 years ago in Chicago, is convinced that bicycling is an important part of American life. The Kuhns do as well, which is why there is such a fine selection of bikes in their small shop. Their stock runs the gamut to cater to the lifestyles of their diverse customers. Extra-light bikes, standard ones, cruisers which will take cyclists across country or abroad even on rough terrain, small durable bikes for tots, sturdy ones for young teenagers all can be studied at Kopp's.

It is no wonder that the shop is crowded all hours of the day. Not only are the Schwinn bicycles top quality but the imported Peugeot and Miyata 12 speeds and other models are on view.

The good news at Kopp's is that many of their bikes will be reduced by 10 to 30 percent from now through Christmas, the largest discount in the shop's history! Small gift items for cyclists include: locks such as the impenetrable Citadel which "thieves hate"; backpacks; lights; and clothing for touring such as the long winter tights.

A serious cyclist travels with his or her bicycle lengthy distances often by air. Passing by Kopp's you will see the new SkyBag, a functional yet handsome bag of three-ply Cordura. It accommodates a tourist's bicycle, racks, tools spare parts, and lightweight air mattress folding into its own carrybag to facilitate transport between points of use.

The air mattress protects the bike during travel. The reinforced lightweight bag is complete with shoulder straps and ball bearing casters mounted on the bottom for easy travel in airports and train stations, the ultimate gift.

Those who prefer to exercise at home will be pleased to know that Kopp's carries a series of exercycles beginning at $250. The widely-acclaimed air-dyne ergometer is unique, programming one's exercise and work load with an indicator and a digital timer. Combine arm and leg effort ensures total exercise, though the user has a choice of four selective exercise programs for a balance of upper and lower body exercise.

Another popular fitness item found at Kopp's which would make a thoughtful and healthy gift is the Schwinn pulsemeter which is a battery-operated computer device to indicate one's rate of pulse while exercising.

Computers from Harry Strauss. Adults and children alike will delight in the fine assortment of electronic equipment in one of Princeton's newest shop's, Harry Strauss and Sons on Nassau Street. It may be small but it is full to the brim with the latest models in computers, typewriters, copiers, cassette recorders and digital clocks—all of which would make super gifts this year. The shop is an outgrowth of a large office supply company in New Brunswick, where it has a huge warehouse.

The Commodore 64 and the Vic 20 are receiving a lot of attention in the computer world. Harry Strauss carries these less expensive computers, the Atari 800, and will soon sell the Apple as well. The Texas Instrument computer on display in the shop is a great attraction to the young who stop in to play the games available there. A fine selection of software programs for the various computers can be seen and what is not there can be ordered and received within a few days.

Children learn effortlessly with the Speak and Spell and the Speak and Read programs by Texas Instruments. At $65 with a $15 rebate, these are good educational gifts for youngsters.

Older students would appreciate a new typewriter (as would the whole family) or a swift calculator. Silver Reed, Smith Corona and the Olivetti Praxis 30 typewriters are good choices. Harry Strauss and Sons will service old typewriters within 48 hours and all of the machines it sells.

Decorate from Ambleside. It is well worth the trip up to Belle Mead to see Ambleside's exhibition of Christmas around the world. It is truly a feast to the eyes, giving shoppers the opportunity to view how they can achieve fanciful cheerful decor this year. There you will see trees adorned in various themes and crafts from many different countries, hand-crafted creches from all over; and an abundance of fresh greens, bushes, wreaths and trees to fill your home with all the trimmings of Christmas.

One cannot overdo when it comes to dressing a tree. It is the personal statement of each family. Ambleside, located on Route 206 has ornaments and gifts which will appeal to everyone, accommodating each family tradition.

A Swedish tree with straw ornaments, baskets, red bows and felt apples or the South American one laden with tin, ceramic, and handknit wool ornaments from those many countries are indeed inspiring. A tree adorned with all blue and white ornaments such as tiny shoes of Delft ceramic is reminiscent of those found in Denmark. A corner of elves working in Santa's workshop and loading up his sleigh full of toys is a whimsical sight, as are all of the wonderful creche scenes on display.

Animals have traditionally played an important role in the nativity scene. Ambleside has a wonderful collection of carved wood animals such as zebras and elephants from Africa, waterfowl, ceramic birds and barnyard animals from Mexico, and Bavarian pewter figures cast from antique molds. A 16-piece creche from Sri Lanka at $69.99 would be a timeless gift, as would a Noah's ark hand-carved in Africa with a complete set of animals which can be displayed each year.

There are several important crafts which will make exquisite presents at the nursery including: hand-woven wall hangings from Peru; one-of-a-kind signed Inuit Eskimo sculpture; pottery from Mexico; and reproductions of the angels and nativity figures seen at the Metropolitan museum tree in New York, which are well priced.

The Chinese use puppets and tiny boxes to decorate their trees. A fanciful idea would be to put tiny gifts in the boxes and let the children hunt for them on Christmas morning.

A collection of German pyramid nativities which turn with the force of candlelight are abundant at Ambleside as are the charming incense burner, musical hobo figures.

Poinsettias fill the shop these days, beginning at $3.99—one of the best ways to give the home a holiday look. Blue, white, and Serbian Norway and Alberta spruce, Concolor and Douglas fir, and long-needle pine freshly cut trees are stacked sky-high at Ambleside. Roping of laurel, Princess and white pine and fir is sold by the yard.

One clever and practical way to decorate the table is to purchase small box trees which may be planted after Christmas. Tiny lights, ornaments, and shimmering gold trimming will look beautiful on a Christmas buffet or dining table. Go to this store before you begin to deck your halls.

Unusual Selection. It is often difficult to find gift items which are unusual and not seen in the larger stores. The Town Shop of Palmer Square has a variety of carefully selected gifts for ladies, children, and gifts for the home which are not found elsewhere.

Stunning satin quilted robes and bed jackets by Odetta

Barsa have always been a favorite here. Among the prettiest is a handsome red satin robe, quilted in black to create a circle-like effect, perfect for Christmas morning.

They have finally solved the problem of a comfortable bed tray for those who are ill or others who just adore relaxing in bed with a good cup of coffee and the newspaper. The Town Shop has handsome trays by Deborah Grant in several flower prints which attach with velcrostraps to a soft lap cushion. This way the tray is comfortable and will not fall off the perfect luxurious present.

There are a number of lovely gifts for ladies at the shop including: ultrasuede handbags to be used as a clutch or a shoulder bag; silk embroidered shawls in glorious colors, and stunning jewelry by Lois Becker.

Household gifts are found at the shop such as custom made frames of print fabric, gorgeous Baccarat crystal and fine Herron china and unusual ceramics such as tea sets which are decorated with teas and herbs or the hand-printed dessert plates with six different flowers.

A number of special toys and gifts for children can be found at the Town Shop. Little trays with matching bibs, laundry bags with bright color appliques, and a small ceramic panda bear are all sure to please the young.

Ceramic candle holders in the shapes of sea lions, owls, sea gulls, and ducks beginning at $14 are good gifts for the birders and hunters in town.

Practical Boots at Huli's. You will not be able to "go dashing through the snow" unless you hurry to Huli's and buy a warm waterproof pair of boots or shoes before they run out. Already the stock of Sport lined boots in several colors has diminished because they are so comfortable and attractive.

Boots, shoes and handbags of the fabulous gortex fabric are hot items this year. Boots lined in fleece for men, women and children in rubber or leather can be selected here.

There is not any girl or mother who would not appreciate the Colo lined suede clog, a girl's best friend! The high of "preppiedom" is one of the Sporto mud shoes in pink with green trim. These comfortable and practical shoes comes in eight different colors.

Warm new slippers are a classic Christmas gift. Huli's has a good assortment of those for men, women and children, including very dressy ones for ladies to go with a new hostess gown.

Many may be unaware of the fact that the shoe store has several small gift items in leather under $20 by Etienne Aigner. Keychains, fobs, pill boxes, wallets and pen sets are on display. Stunning woven leather handbags by the same company would please any lady.

Young girls and the sporty types would like a new Bermuda bag with a few colorful extra wool covers, all of which are displayed on the walls of the shop.

The dancer in your life would be pleased with new leg warmers, a sweater, leotards or new toe shoes which can be found at the shop. Colorful Pappagallo rain gear run there can be worn throughout the year.

Winter Wear. J.D. Sach's has terrific prices if you are looking for the top quality wilderness clothing or just a thoughtful gift for winter wear. Rabbit fur trooper hats for $42.95, mountain parkas for $78.95, cozy nighshirts for $22.50, down clothing for teenagers and adults, and handsome sweaters can all be found there.

The new shop of State Road has been very successful thus far. It is an easy place to stop in and pick up a few gifts which are sure to please on Christmas morning. Who would not want a warm chamois or Pendleton shirt or blanket? A rag sweater or one with a colorful pattern would not be rejected by the most demanding teenagers.

A really generous gift which will last a lifetime (and has a lifetime warranty which the shop offers on all of their down projects) would be a sleeping bag.

Smaller gifts from J.D. Sach's include: mittens, warm wool socks, slipper socks, and bright red long underwear. The new fleece jackets are a popular item with the younger set.

Personalized Gifts. Everyone loves to see their own name in print. Go to Allen's, even as late as December 17th, to have gifts for youngsters personalized with their very own monograms or names. Laundry bags of nylon with appliques of ballet shoes, dinosaurs, toys, and whales to mention a few will make creative thoughtful gifts.

Baby furnishings, equipment to make a young mother's life more comfortable, infant and toddler clothing and toys for this age group can all be found at Allen's. Save yourself the hassle of shopping in the large toy stores and take a look at the fine selection of Fisher Price toys available there. A wonderful baby gift would be a pretty new comforter for baby. Matching sets of sheets, bumpers, comforters and pillows will charm the parents and keep a little friend cozy all winter.

Especially notable in Allen's window, along with a moving Santa who is reading a list of children's names, is a six foot Paddington Bear. He has a new brother this year who sports a navy blue coat, a red hat and rubbers. All of the stuffed animals from the Beatrix Potter books and the books as well are on display at Allen's, where there is a good assortment of Stieff toys.

If you are hesitant to buy clothes for a young girl, buy her a Miss Piggy indoor sleeping bag which will keep her cozy all winter long. These are done for boys too in the soccer theme.

Of course, the children flock to Allen's to find the party clothes they are required to wear during the season, but there are many items which they would enjoy for Christmas such as sweat suits, rugby shirts, sweaters, button-downs, belts, pyjamas and nightgown and robe sets. It is all there for the asking.

Now is a good time to buy heavy winter gear for your children. Toddler and infant snowsuits are on sale at 25 percent off regular price as are the down jackets and vests for boys and girls. Skirts, dresses, knickers, and blazers are reduced by 20 percent.

GRAPHICS ON VIEW

By Helen Schwartz. "Western Landscapes," a series of stylized, abstracted views of mountains and deserts by Princeton graphic artist Helen Schwartz will be on view through December at Nassau Gallery, 20 Nassau.

The mixed media works on paper use reds and yellows, deep purples and blue-greys characteristic of the strong contrasts in American western landscapes.

The small squares, composed of angular forms and horizons, combine several graphic techniques. They begin as collagraphic monoprints, with paint rather than ink, used for surfaces. They are then punctuated by linear forms, water color, and pencil accents that provide a counterpoint to ragged mountain silhouettes.

Works by Helen Schwartz are in the permanent collections of the New Jersey State Museum, Newark Museum, the Firestone Graphics Collection of Princeton University, Radcliffe College, The American Embassy in Japan and many other public and private collections.

Mrs. Schwartz is the author of "The New Jersey House," a survey of domestic architecture scheduled for spring publication by Rutgers University Press. She is the art critic for Town Topics.

Princeton Basketball Team Is Having to Learn on Road; With 8 of First 11 Games Away, Delaware, St. John's Next

As it plows through the early part of its schedule, the Princeton basketball team is having to learn its lessons on the road this month, playing eight of its first 11 games away.

After a respectable showing at the Carrier Classic in Syracuse last weekend, the Tigers will travel south to Delaware this Saturday, and north to St. John's Saturday, Dec. 18. Their second home game was played Tuesday evening against Fordham.

The game against Delaware in Newark Saturday will mark the first time the two schools have met in basketball in 60 years. The Tigers won the only meeting between the two, 27-14, in March, 1922.

The Blue Hens have a fine 6-10 center in Tim Carr, who is averaging a little over 12 points a game, and a guard, Tim Tompkins, hitting for 10. They have won one of three so far, losing to Drexel and LaSalle, and beating Washington College. Last season they finished 6-10 in the East Coast Conference. The Tigers can't afford to take anyone lightly, but the feeling is they should be able to gain a measure of revenge for the drubbings the football team has taken the past two years.

In its first four games, Princeton has shown improvement over last year, but has not had the capability to knock off either of the two stronger opponents it has faced. Rutgers had too much for the Tigers down the stretch, emerging with a 60-55 triumph a week ago Tuesday, and undefeated Syracuse had too much firepower also.

The Orangemen led almost all the way in the championship game of their tournament, finishing with a 67-54 victory last Saturday. The Tigers played the winners even in the second half, but were a bit overmatched.

The Orange and Black's first-round victory over a winless Boston University quintet can be viewed either with optimism or pessimism, depending on one's viewpoint. It was nice to see the Tigers pull out the victory in overtime, after being behind by three points. This is the kind of game they surely would have lost a year ago.

However, they also played pretty poorly in the final five to six minutes to allow BU to tie the score, and only a game-saving basket at the buzzer by Gordon Enderle made the overtime victory possible.

First 13 to Tigers. Princeton began the game as if it intended to put Boston University away by halftime, scoring the first 13 points. However the Terriers worked their way back, and trailed by only seven, 33-26 at the intermission.

With Billy Ryan feeding Enderle on some neat back-door plays, and freshman John Smyth on target from the outside, Princeton stayed comfortably ahead for most of the second half, leading by as much as 12 at one point. But, BU began to rally with six minutes left.

Behind by 60-49, after Enderle had hit on his third three-point play of the half, the Terriers steadily closed the gap, and trailed by only four, 62-58 with 3:05 to go. Three consecutive turnovers and a miss by Smyth on a one-and-one situation, kept the Tigers scoreless over the next three minutes, while BU took a 64-62 lead on a pair of free throws with 10 seconds remaining.

After a timeout, Princeton fed the ball to Enderle for a last shot from the top of the key, and he made it, sending the game into a five-minute overtime. BU took a three-point lead into the final two minutes of the extra session, but two foul shots by Kevin Mullen and a basket by Enderle, sandwiched around a

Craig Robinson
24 Points against Syracuse

BU basket pulled the Tigers to within one.

When the losers missed on a one-and-one try, Princeton had its chance. Craig Robinson was fouled in the act of shooting with 39 seconds left and sank both, putting Princeton up by one, 70-69. The Terriers missed on their last shot.

Enderle led all scorers with 23 points, Robinson had 16, and Smyth, 14 on six of nine shooting from the field.

Syracuse Rolls On. There was no question, who the best team in the tournament was. On the way to winning the Carrier Classic for the first time since 1979, the Orangemen blew out Alcorn State of Mississippi, 110-77 in their first round contest.

The following night, the host team raced to a 44-31 halftime lead, and never let the Tigers get closer than eight points the rest of the way. With four minutes remaining, Princeton was behind 60-52, but fell off after that.

The hot-shooting Orangemen hit on 29 of 46 shots from the floor, a sizzling 63 percent, while Princeton fell just short of 50 percent, with 18 of 38. However, the Tigers had an outstanding night from the foul line, canning 18 of 20 tries.

Robinson paced the Tigers with 24 points, while Enderle had 12.

Friday night, Howard Levy saw extensive action, and scored four points, when Rich Simkus got in foul trouble, and eventually drew five personals. Levy played 13 more minutes against Syracuse, but did not score leading Carril to comment: "At least he didn't hurt us, now we have to get him helping us."

Carril also is looking to give Mullen more playing time to make him into a capable third forward to spell Enderle or Robinson for brief periods. At the moment, he is going with Isaac Carter as his top reserve at guard, but that could change if Jeff Paagano or Gary Knapp improve. Smyth still is bothered by houts of nervousness in big games, but these should disappear as the season progresses.

Tigers Tire at New Brunswick A week ago Tuesday, Rutgers demonstrated the value of being able to use nine players instead of sticking with five starters.

In a fast-paced contest in a hot athletic center, the Scarlet Knights had more left down the stretch, outscoring the tiring Tigers 9-2 during the crucial final minutes. Moreover, three starters for the Orange and Black, Robinson, Smyth and Enderle had to watch the finish from the bench, after collecting five personals.

With the score tied for the final time at 47 apiece, Rutgers went on its roll, taking a 56-49 lead, and Princeton never caught up. The Tigers helped dig their own grave with three turnovers, stemming from bad passes. Ryan through an in-bounds pass away against an all-court press, Simkus tried to force one inside, and Knapp got hung up in mid-air and let the ball get away.

The Tigers do not have the depth to sustain them in a closely-fought battle of this kind; Carril substituted only when fouls became a factor. And when the Tigers needed three points to tie with less than a minute remaining, it was left to Mullen to take the shot, and his desperate effort hit nothing but air.

Before the home team's final spurt, neither was able to gain the upper hand, with the lead changing frequently. Playing with a 40-second shot clock, and a three-point rule, Princeton did not seem bothered by the former, and made good use of the latter, hitting on several attempts.

Outshot from the field, the Scarlet Knights won the game from the foul line, hitting on 18 of 24. Princeton could manage just seven of 12, and is going to have to improve here if it hopes to win other close games. Simkus finished with 14 points, and Robinson 12. Rutgers' Roy Hinson topped all scorers with 19.

TIGERS SPLIT A PAIR

In Men's Hockey. A mediocre performance, especially on defense, managed to carry the Princeton men's hockey team to a 7-6 victory over Maine last Wednesday, but it proved disastrous against Northeastern on Saturday.

The Huskies, last year's ECAC champions, took full advantage of the Tigers' sloppy play and built a 6-0 advantage after two periods in the old Boston Arena. Coach Jim Higgins' skaters came to life in the third period, scoring three times, but it was too late with too little.

The 7-3 loss ended the Orange and Black's brief flight above the 500 mark, leaving them at 3-3 with a couple of difficult contests ahead. Providence will be in Baker Rink this Wednesday evening at 7:30, and Saturday Princeton will journey to New Haven for their second engagement with Yale.

Sporting a 12-3 mark, 5-1 in ECAC Division 1 play, the Friars will be ready to take full advantage of any continued letdown on the Tigers' part. In past years, however, Princeton has saved one of its better efforts for this team, playing well last winter, and winning two years ago.

Since its opening victory here on November 21, Yale has won three of four games, and stands tied with Harvard atop the Ivy league. Both teams have won once, the Crimson defeating Dartmouth a couple of weeks ago.

"Cheap" Goals. In contrast to the Maine game, where goalie Ron Dennis had to make 47 saves Northeastern took just 21 shots, but seven found the raoge. Dennis had plenty of company in front of the net, but more often than not it was two Huskie forwards.

The home team scored three times in the first period and three more in the second, and was able to coast the rest of the way. Chuck Huggins, Rob Scheuer and Jim Matthews all scored for Princeton in the final stanza. Huggins and Matthews lead the team in goals scored with five apiece, Scheuer's was his second.

Wild One Last Wednesday. Who would have thought that after a scoreless first period, the contest with Maine last Wednesday would erupt into a free scoring affair? It did, with defense nowhere in sight.

The Tigers' defense left goalie Ron Dennis at the mercy of Maine's forwards on one occasion after another, but fortunately for the Orange and Black, its own offense managed to score seven times.

This was against a Maine team that had lost four straight coming into Baker Rink, its opening pair of victories coming over some team called Dalhousie. Coach Jack Semler, who directed the Tigers a few years ago, seems headed for another lean season in Orono.

The Black Bears outshot Princeton 12-6 in the first period, but neither team could score. Dennis looked particularly sharp on several occasions.

However, his defense deserted him with just 40 seconds gone in the second period, leaving Maine with a three-on-one situation, which it converted into a 1-0 lead. Twelve minutes and several opportunities went by before the Tigers could gain a tie. Pat Brodeur finally found the range during Princeton's fifth power play of the evening, blasting the puck in from the right face off circle. Keith Benker and Scheuer picked up assists.

It took the Orange and Black less than two minutes to give up the tie. Tim Oshier trying to run down the clock on a Maine power play put the puck right on the stick of a Maine forward in center ice, and the visitors had their second goal against a defenseless Dennis seconds later.

Near the end of the period, the Tigers were shorthanded

Leland Merrill, former U.S. Olympic Wrestler, Is Third Coach in Sport in Three Years at PHS

A former U.S. Olympic wrestler, who says he has spent about 50 of his 62 years in wrestling, is the new coach of the Princeton High School wrestling team, which will open its season next Monday at Freehold.

Leland Merrill, a Princeton resident for the past 29 years, will be the third Little Tiger mat coach in the past three years. "I'm happy to get a chance to do it," said Merrill. "A lot of older men don't get that chance. It's not a life sentence. All I want to do is make a contribution."

The first time he wrestled, recalled Merrill, was when he was 14 and a high school student in West Virginia. "I've stayed with it a long time," he mused. He continued wrestling in college at Michigan State and for three years for the New York Athletic Club.

At 28, he was fortunate, he said, to be a member of the 1948 U.S. Olympic free style wrestling team. He kept his hand in wrestling by refereeing matches across the United States until 1961.

A couple of times Merrill served as head referee at the NCAA finals and was referee of the match in which Johnny Johnston, the present Princeton University wrestling coach, won a national title in 1956 in Pittsburgh wrestling for Penn State University.

Merrill continued his advanced education at Rutgers University where he received his doctorate in entomology. A Dean of the Agricultural School at Rutgers since 1961, Merrill will retire from Rutgers next Friday, December 17.

At PHS, Merrill will inherit a program that has been on the downslide. He takes over the reins from Larry DiPano, who was a prep school state champion runner-up during his junior and senior years at Admiral Farragut and continued his wrestling career at Rutgers under coach Dean Oliver. DiPano left to devote full time to his construction business.

From the start, DiPano had stated that his tenure would depend on re-installing a middle school wrestling program which he felt an absolute essential if there was to be a turnaround in the sport at PHS. He tried without success to get such a program started.

"It is a technique sport," agreed Merrill, "you get naturals once in a while." As for any predictions about the upcoming season, the low-key Merrill is non-committal.

"No predictions," he said. "It's up to the boys. There's a lot of spirit and they're a great bunch of kids. We'll show up for every meet but I'm not one of those win-at-all-costs coach. It's a good sport."

Assist From Robinson. Merrill will get a big assist in coaching from his assistant, Dave Robinson. Former followers of the sport at PHS know the name well. For all four of his years at PHS, Robinson was a member of the Little Tiger varsity. He is among the handful of standout wrestlers developed under Tom Murray, who had coached the sport since its inception at PHS before stepping down two years ago.

From PHS, Robinson went to Indiana University where he added to his knowledge of the sport under coach Doug Blubaugh, a national champion.

"He knows his stuff; he's an excellent coach," said Merrill of Robinson. "If he has anything to do with it, one thing for sure our kids are going to be in shape. He's a tiger.

Tri-Captains. The 31-member squad has elected three seniors to captain the team. They are veteran Nick Hastings, who will compete at 129 pounds; Scott Perone (135) and Ralph Carnevale (165).

Senior Ken Stroman, sidelined temporarily with a chest injury, will wrestle at 122 pounds, while David Schwartz, who compiled an impressive record as a freshman last year at 101 pounds, will climb to 112. Schwartz had been weight training and, says Merrill, "looks very good."

Princeton's perennial problem of finding a legitimate heavyweight may have been solved with the appearance of 206-pound Tamar El-Shaks. "He's the first bonafide heavyweight I've seen," said Merrill.

Still in his first week of practice, Merrill conceded that he is not yet familiar with the potential on the squad.

"Some move fast, some plateau out early and some continue to develop." After the first meet with Peddie we'll find out what we've got."

This fall, Merrill and Robinson spent six weeks at the Middle School, in an attempt to address the problem of early exposure to the sport that DiPano felt was so vital. The two worked with as many as 27 kids, including a hard core of ten.

"The interest seems to be rebuilding," said Merrill, who counts running for a half-dozen years a New Brunswick Y wrestling team for boys out of high school among his coaching experience. It's a real chance for the little guy."

PHS is a long way down the road for Merrill from those early cramped quarters at West Virginia. Noting the weight room, indoor track two mats and a third at John Witherspoon School, Merrill remarked, "you could train an olympic team with the facilities they have here."

Starting 12th Year as PHS Basketball Coach, Trotman feels His Team Has Good Shot at Title

For a long time now, there have been a few good but no glory years for the Princeton High School basketball team.

Last year, the Little Tigers were eliminated in the second round of the state competition by Asbury Park to finish with an overall 9-12 mark. The previous year it was 6-16. The 1982-83 season isn't likely to change that trend.

But PHS coach Marvin Trotman, who took over coaching the sport eleven years ago in the middle of the 1971-72 season, feels that this year's squad has a legitimate shot at the league title this year. "We could possibly be a contender—if we play really good, smart basketball," PHS, Trotman noted, will be one of the smallest teams in the Colonial Valley League.

If not the outright title, then maybe, smiled Trotman, we'll spoil somebody's season. "They've (the other league teams) been heating up on us for a few years."

Ewing, believes Trotman, is going to be the class of the league. "They're big and strong. We've played most of the teams in the summer league, so we know what they have. With a little speed on the court we'll be all right. Hopefully, we can be consistent enough to give them some trouble."

"I look at this as a good year," summed up Trotman. "Next year we're going to be tough. We have a lot of good sophomores and juniors."

Co-Captains The Key. If this year's team is going to click, the Little Tigers will open next Friday against Peddie in Hightstown—then the burden is going to fall on a pair of senior co-captains and 6-5½ junior center Kyle Hayes.

PHS has not had a strong floor leader for several years—and has been a poorer team because of it. That vital role has been assigned to Jerry Ingram, a 5-8 senior co-captain. "He's going to be our point guard. We're looking to him for leadership," said Trotman. At shooting guard will be the other co-captain Terry Phox. The 6-2 senior will be starting his third year on the varsity and Trotman is counting on Phox's experience to be a steady influence on the team.

The big man will be Hayes, who will have to fill the void under the boards left by Larry McKellar, an aggressive player who was the Little Tiger's top rebounder and enforcer last year.

As a 6-4 sophomore, Hayes was in double figures in 11 games last year and Trotman is hoping he has grown not only physically but in ability. After Hayes and the 6-2 Phox, height on the PHS squad falls off considerably, Trotman noted.

"We'll run if we have the opportunity," commented Trotman, "but you've got to get rebounds to run."

Four seniors on the squad include Marc Shapiro, a 5-8 guard, who was a starter in last year's opening game with Franklin. Tim Howard, who saw limited varsity action last year, Eddie Rice and Ken Varvel.

Another senior, who could be a surprising addition to the team, is Ken McKellar, who has returned to the sport after a couple year's absence. Blair Spruill, a 5-11 senior, is another seeking a varsity berth.

Underclassmen joining Hayes, which will make PHS the formidable opponent next season that Trotman mentioned earlier, are juniors John Lysaker, Joe O'Grady, Jason Petrone and two promising sophomores, Keith Green and Freddie Young.

"We have a good flux of sophomores and juniors," admitted Trotman. Also, a contingent of 18 freshmen. In all, the freshmen, junior varsity and varsity turnout is one of the biggest in years, Trotman confirmed.

"Why? I don't know. It just seems the kids are responding better not only to sports but academically as well."

Two scrimmages, one with Rancocas Valley High School Thursday and another with New Brunswick the following week, will help Trotman sort out the talent he has. After the opener with Peddie, PHS will also be one of eight teams participating in a Christmas Tournament December 27-28 at Freehold. Last year, the Blue and White did not participate in any holiday tournament and the lack of activity during the holiday break was evident in January.

More Disciplined. The holy grail that Trotman keeps searching for is team discipline. This year, he feels he may have found a piece of it.

"We'll run under control as best we can," he said. "We're a more disciplined team. The work on discipline has been coming the last couple of years, as opposed to the blackout option."

"If it is any indication of how we're going, the kids are responding to hard work. We've been busting their hump and I haven't heard one grumble or moan yet."

On defense, PHS will go man-to-man, although last year it played some zone. "We've been looking good with the zone," allowed Trotman, "and we'll try some of it, but we'll play man-to-man" (a Trotman trademark). "We'll suck it up. I think we have the players to do it."

Snyder is Assistant. Assisting Trotman this year will be Doug Snyder, who is a former 6-2 guard on the Princeton University team, "the only position I could have played."

Snyder, a social studies, history and political science teacher at PHS, was a freshman on the Tiger squad when PU won the NIT Tournament in New York. As a junior in 1977, he was a starter, but then left school for three years and did not play when he came back to finish. This fall, he was an assistant on Bill Cirullo's PHS football staff.

"He's been a big help for us," said Trotman. "He knows his job and the kids respect him because he's been a player. The kids listen a lot better when you've been a player yourself."

again, and when their own two-on-one break was stopped, the Black Bears went the other way in a hurry, and popped in their third goal.

Four Goals Fast. Whatever Higgins said between periods certainly aroused the Tigers on offense. In the first four minutes and 10 seconds of play, Princeton connected four times to take a 5-3 lead.

Freshman Todd Ladda fired in a 20-footer from the right side, assisted by Tom Daccord and Ed Lee at 1:16. Forty seconds later, Lee beat the visitors' goalie from in close, knocking in the rebound of a shot by Ladda, tying the score at three apiece.

At 3:08, Jim Matthews and Huggins combined on a pretty two-on-one break, the latter taking a pass in the slot and sliding the puck into the right corner. Finally, at 4:10, Oshier fired a rising slap shot from the blue line that hit the glove of the Maine goalie and fell behind him into the net. Dennis picked up an assist on this one, his clearing pass sending Oshier on his way.

Possibly enamored with their ability to score almost at will, the Tigers got sloppy on defense, repeatedly leaving Maine players open deep in the zone. The Black Bears scored twice in less than two minutes midway through the stanza to tie matters at 5-5.

A goal by Scheuer at 11:10 sent the home team back in front, 6-5, but Maine countered with its sixth tally a little over a minute later. Both teams had numerous other chances in the end-to-end action, but the last goal of the evening came with 3:10 left off the stick of Jim Matthews.

Scheuer picked up a loose puck in the Maine zone, and found Matthews alone in the slot. His backhand shot beat the Maine goalie to his stick side.

The excitement wasn't over yet, however. Oshier was called for roughing at 16:55, giving the Black Bears a final power play opportunity. They battered Dennis with one shot after another, even pulling their own goalie with 2:05 left for a momentary two-man advantage. Dennis kicked out every thing that came his way, including repeated shots from close in on rebounds to preserve the victory.

In retrospect, the penalty was probably a blessing in disguise. It forced the Tigers to concentrate on defense for a change.

TIGERS TOPPLE HARVARD

In Women's Ice Hockey, The Princeton Women's hockey team still has a way to go before it can play with the top teams in the country, but it will be the team to beat in the Ivy League again.

The Tigers, who won the league last year and finished third in the ECAC, dropped an 8-1 decision to Providence last Wednesday, but rebounded to whip Harvard, 8-2 at Baker Rink Saturday afternoon.

Sandwiched around those two contests were a pair of lopsided victories over the Delaware Bobcats, the most recent coming Sunday at Baker to give the Orange and Black a 4-1 mark.

This Saturday, the Princeton women will be looking for their second league victory when they meet Yale at 2 p.m. here. On Sunday, they will face off against the Hobomock Hockey Club at 12:30 also at Baker.

In its rout of the Tigers last week, Providence set a good example for the Insers to follow, with pinpoint passing and strong shooting. An unassisted goal by Kelly O'Dell in the first period was the highlight of the contest for the home team, and cut the winners' lead to 2-1 briefly. But, it was all Providence the rest of the way.

On Saturday, Princeton took command midway through the second period, breaking a 2-2 tie with four goals in five minutes on the way to its victory. Eliot Ammidon and Syrena Carlhom gave the Tigers a 2-0 lead in the first period, but the Crimson managed to gain a tie, as missed passes and penalties plagued coach Bill Quackenbush's skaters.

The Tigers came alive after Harvard's second goal, on a pair of goals by Carlhom, and one each by captain Julie Wallace and Laura Halldorson take a 6-2 lead after two periods. Halldorson and O'Dell tallied in the third period to complete the scoring.

SEASON TO OPEN

For PDS Teams. The Princeton Day boys' basketball and hockey teams will open their seasons this Wednesday.

Hoping to improve on its 1-20 mark a year ago, the basketball team will open on the road at Newark Academy. The hockey team, which finished with a flourish, winning both the state tournament and its own last February, will meet Peddie at home. The Panthers had a 13-3-4 mark last winter.

HOME MEET SATURDAY

For Hun Wrestling Team. The Hun wrestling team, which will have eight seniors in its starting lineup, will take Peddie to the mat Saturday at 3:30 in its first home meet of the season.

Before that, however, the Raiders will engage in a triangular meet with Rutgers and Admiral Farragut away this Wednesday afternoon. Next Wednesday, they will be at New Hope High School, which is starting its second season in the sport.

Last year under new coach Dave Faus, Hun finished with a 7-7 record. This year, "we're hoping to do at least that well if not better," said Faus, a 1976 graduate of Hun. "I'm more confident about the league in knowing what to expect," he said.

The Hun schedule is not an easy one. It is peppered with public high schools, including Nottingham, South Brunswick, Hamilton, Ewing, Trenton and Princeton High. "That's good for the level of competition, but I don't know for our record," Faus observed. "But we're hoping for a successful season."

From last year's squad, Faus lost the Crater twins, John and Scott, to graduation and his 105-pounder, Jeff Silver who has entered Ewing High. A newcomer, and highly touted, is senior Dave Zimmer, who lost only one bout last year wrestling for Peddie. He will compete at 112.

Co-captains of the team are seniors Rick Gallin (112 pounds) and heavyweight Yawan Kayali, both tested veterans.

Others starters returning include junior Chris Black.

who will compete at 170 pounds again; Todd Lapani, a standout at 157 last year, the same weight he will wrestle this year; senior Larry Falls, 132-pounds, and senior Bob Scherr, 126 pounds.

Faus is hoping senior Pat Daly will bring some stability in the middle weights where Hun is shaky. Daly will compete at 145. Although only a freshman, Nick Kydonous is a probable starter at 188 pounds. "He's big and he's been wrestling quite a while," reported Faus.

Two others likely to see action are sophomore Danny Zumbun (108) and senior Mickey Raad (138) up from the jayvee squad.

"We expect to be strong at 112 and 119," predicted Faus, and to finish strong with Lapani, Black and Kayali. With a squad numbering 25-30, Faus added that he also expects to be able to field a stronger jayvee team this year.

In addition to the Mercer County Tournament Dec. 29-30 at Steiner High, Hun will also compete in the Tatnell Tournament January 29, and its own Hun School Tournament in February. The New Jersey Independent School state tournament competition will be held this year at the Hun gym Feb. 25-26.

HOCKEY PROGRAM SET
By Skating Club. For area hockey players ages 14 and under, the Princeton Skating Club is offering a course in skills and scrimmages.

The course taught by Newell Woodworth, head coach of boys' varsity hockey at the Princeton Day School and a former Middlebury hockey captain.

Classes focus on basic skating, stick handling and team skills. Sessions are on Sundays, now through February 27, 3:30-4:30 at the PDS rink. The fee for the season is $40, and membership in the Princeton Skating Club is required.

Also available is a course in hockey power skating. The emphasis is on improved skating, strong edges, agility, speed and stamina, and hockey equipment is not used. Taught by Mike Whalen, this class meets on Thursdays, 7:15-8:15 p.m. at the PDS rink. For club members only, the class costs $40 for 14 sessions.

The annual Holiday Hockey Clinic for girls and boys ages 7-15 will be held during the last two weeks of December at the PDS rink. Steve Dagdigan, head hockey coach at Peddie, will join "Buzz" Woodworth in instructing in basic skating and stick handling and in coaching games and scrimmages. The clinic consists of seven sessions between December 20-23 and December 27-29.

Players will be divided into two groups with 7-9 year olds meeting between 1-2:30 p.m.
